Get to know your kids' friends

As parents, we try to protect our kids from a lot of things. We protect them from germs by making them wash their hands. We protect them from danger by watching them on the playground, making sure they look both ways before they cross a street, or by enforcing seatbelts in the car. But are we protecting them from their friends? When they're little, we dictate with whom they play. We set up the play dates with parents we like or force them to play with our friends' own kids. Once they join activities, they meet new friends. However, we're usually still very much involved in those activities considering we're their chauffeur. We often get to know the parents while watching soccer games or sitting through cheer practice and still allow these friends in their lives.

Once they reach a certain age, it becomes increasingly more difficult. In middle school and high school, they are making friends, and I don't know who these kids are, let alone their parents. I may meet them at birthdays or other social functions, but for the most part, I don't really know who my children are with most of each day.

It's become something I've been thinking about more and more since my oldest entered high school. He's been asking me to take him to different places to hang out with his friend. They are practicing soccer together since they're both trying out for the team. I trust that's what he's really doing, especially when he leaves wearing cleats and carrying a ball. However, in the back of my mind I've been worrying lately.

What if this friend introduces him to beer? Or drugs? What if his friend looks at images on his phone that are inappropriate? Does this child know Jesus? Is he a good influence on my child? I've had brief interactions with him, and he is well mannered, but that doesn't mean much. That could be a facade that he shows to parents but not the same person he is around my child.

I feel confident that we've had many conversations with our children about friends and drugs and alcohol. I know my kids have given their life to Christ. However, I've seen so many kids swayed and turned down a dangerous path because they started hanging out with the wrong crowd. I myself have even made poor decisions when it came to friendships in my younger years.

How do I ensure that my chil-

Janet Marie Schindler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Schindler of Neligh became the bride of Walter Dean Kallhoff, son of Mrs. Regina Kallhoff and the late Joseph Kallhoff on Saturday, Sept. 19, 1964. The double ring ceremony was performed at 11:00 o'clock in St. Francis Catholic Church in Neligh. Rev. Charles Broderson officiated.

Danker Pedersen reported to Marshal Monte Totten, Monday, that an intruder at the Axel Pederson farm had taken several shots at him while Danker was investigating a trespasser at that farm, Sunday evening. Danker was mowing hay along the road at Axel's place when apparently a lone man drove into Axel's farm yard. Danker went into the yard and a man started shooting at him with a rifle. The car sped through the garden, out through a field and over a down fence and proceeded south.

Lynn Varn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Varn, was the first hunter this year from Elgin to report making his kill of a deer with a bow and arrow. The young buck weighed 50 pounds after being hog-dressed. The deer was killed Monday evening east of town in the Cedar Creek area.

Rudy Heithoff received a blue ribbon first place and a bronze plaque for his Certified Vernal Alfalfa entry at the Nebraska State Fair. Entries were made through the Nebraska Crop Improvement Association.

An early fall harvest season has been underway in the Elgin area since the middle of last week. With continued dry weather, many area farmers have been harvesting their soybean crop since Sept. 13.

A search for a missing Tilden helicopter pilot, Caryl Ruterbories, ended last Saturday when two deer hunters found the wreckage of a helicopter and the body of Ruterbories in Wisconsin. The wreckage was found in a forest area about 15 miles west of Wisconsin Rapids, WI.

On Sept. 10, Vince Spieker reported about $800 in vandalism damage at a farm. A weapon had been used to shoot several holes in a grain bin, an electrical box, electric meter and an automatic livestock waterer. Also, the windows were shot out of a barn and corn crib.

You need to overcome a legal 'full-court press' to get citizen-led initiatives on ballot

Back in the day, our high school basketball team used to employ a full-court press when we'd fallen behind.

It was mostly a desperation measure toward the end of a game, a frantic effort in hopes that we could suddenly trip up our opponent, and turn a defeat into a victory.

Well, just recently in Nebraska, we were able to see a political full-court press in action, and such all-out strategy seems to have become the norm when it comes to citizen-led ballot initiatives.

ALL THINGS NEBRASKA

State Correspondent Paul Hammel

Ballot initiatives allow the "second house" of Nebraska state government - voting citizens - to adopt proposed state laws or constitutional amendments.

We're the only state in the nation with a one-house Unicameral Legislature - the "first house" - so citizens, via the ballot box, become the "second house" to decide state policy.

Some important laws have been passed at the ballot box, including the 2022 decisions to raise the state's minimum wage and require a photo ID to vote - both things that the "first house," the Unicameral, declined to pass.

This year, we have a ballot initiative-palooza as six measures qualified for the ballot via petition drives.

But whoa, wait a minute, it doesn't appear good enough, anymore, for groups to spend millions of dollars and months of work to gather more than a 100,000 signatures of registered voters to qualify for the ballot. No, nowadays we have to have a court decide if the language complies with state law.

Groups opposing ballot initiatives employ this political full-court press after they see public support for a political campaign that has gathered enough signatures. If they can't win at the ballot box, maybe they can win in court.

We saw this play out on two successive days recently when the Nebraska Supreme Court took oral arguments on efforts to disqualify two initiatives on abortion and another on private school vouchers.

(Don't forget - That school voucher challenge came after the State Legislature, in an unprecedented full-court press maneuver, voted this spring to rescind a voucher law passed a year ago, thus rendering null and void a successful petition drive that was going to force a public vote on that 2023 "Opportunity Scholarship" law. So opponents of using public funds for private education mounted a second, successful initiative petition drive.)

Thankfully, justice prevailed with the Supreme Court, which ruled just a couple of days after hearing arguments that the abortion and school voucher matters should be placed on the November ballot.

"We have repeatedly said that the right of initiative is precious to the people and one which the courts are zealous to preserve to the fullest tenable measure of spirit as well as letter," wrote Supreme Court Judge Lindsey Miller-Lerman. Whew.

The court, in a concurring opinion written by Chief Justice Mike Heavican and Miller-Lerman, also shut the door on any reconsideration by Secretary of State Bob Evnen to reverse his decision to approve the language of the school voucher petition. The judges wrote that they saw no legal way to do that (Evnen, after approving the language, had expressed a desire to reverse course, though in the end, followed the court's opinion).

The full-court pressing is far from over. Opponents of legalizing medical cannabis to treat maladies like uncontrollable seizures and post-traumatic stress disorder filed a last-minute legal challenge. It's too late to remove the marijuana issue from the ballot this year - remember, a technicality knocked it off the ballot in 2020 - but if the legal challenge is successful, it would block counting the votes cast in November.

There's also a possibility that legal challenges could be filed if the school voucher referendum is successful.

This, sadly, is the way of the world now. Decisions are appealed, even on the football field, and it takes 33 votes to pass a bill in the State Legislature that has any kind of controversy, rather than a simple majority of the 49 senators.

But it seems particularly sad that a right given citizens in the State Constitution - to adopt laws or change the constitution - now has so many more hurdles to jump..

Paul Hammel has covered the Nebraska state government and the state for decades. He retired in April as senior contributor with the Nebraska Examiner. He was previously with the Omaha World-Herald, Lincoln Journal Star and Omaha Sun. A native of Ralston, Nebraska, he loves traveling and writing about the state.

Growth through energy abundance

In 2024, American households are spending more on all categories of energy compared to prices at the start of 2021. As virtually every industry requires energy, this affects nearly every aspect of our lives and businesses. In places like Nebraska's Third District, the agriculture industry depends on energy sources to power machinery, facilitate irrigation, manufacture and transport inputs, and deliver products to market. Other energy intensive industries have been severely impacted by rising energy costs. Transportation services costs are up 38.5 percent. Laundry and dry-cleaning services are up 25.5 percent. According to the Joint Economic Committee, Nebraskans were forced to spend a staggering $29,850 more in household expenses since January 2021 just because of the impact of inflation.

Unfortunately, like toothpaste already out of the tube, consumer purchasing power lost to inflation is almost impossible to reverse. Slowing the rate of rising prices does nothing to clean up the economic damage which has already been done or recover the depleted savings of American families and small businesses. Likewise, this week's target interest rate cut by the Federal Reserve was another reminder that buying a home or vehicle has become less affordable for American families because of mitigation measures necessitated by the inflationary policies of the Biden-Harris administration.

In Congress, relief from rising costs must come from sound fiscal policy encouraging robust economic growth and more resilience in our supply chains. Instead, the White House has neglected, and even actively stifled, opportunities for growth and prosperity through executive action. Blocking construction of the Keystone XL pipeline and banning liquefied natural gas exports with no justification drove inflation when empowering industry and fostering energy abundance could have helped combat it.

With actions which all-too-often defy commonsense, the Biden-Harris administration has set America back when it comes to energy policy. Rather than embrace an all-of-the-above approach to energy abundance, the Biden-Harris administration blocked federal sales and leasing for petroleum production and continues to drag its feet on lowering needless barriers to the availability of E-15 at the gas pump. Currently there is a 320-million-barrel shortfall in the Strategic Petroleum Reserve, which has remained near a four-decade low since the Biden-Harris administration drained and sold off our stockpile.

FAFSA fiasco goes on

Each year, millions of prospective students and their families decide whether and where to attend college.

of higher education. For the second straight year, the Biden-Harris Department of Education (ED) promised an improved FAFSA experience. For the second straight year, they've delivered a FAFSA fiasco. I'm working to help Nebraska families overcome this incompetence. After three years of claimed preparation, ED soft-launched a "simplified and improved" FAFSA form last December 30. That was nearly three months later than normal. It was also after some students needed to make their college decisions. Even this soft-launch turned into a fiasco. The new form contained new, unfair rules penalizing the children of farm families and small business owners. It counted illiquid assets towards parental contributions. These rules could force family farmers to sell off assets to send their children dren are choosing wisely when it comes to friends? I can't meet every person they're ever going to interact with. I certainly can't come with them to college and interview each person in their social circle. At some point I must trust that we've done enough and watch for any signs of behavior that seem out of the ordinary. In the meantime, I'm going to continue to have tough conversations with them and stress the importance of choosing friends wisely. I'm going to talk about drugs and alcohol. And most importantly, I'm going to stay on my knees and pray for wisdom and discernment.

to college. I'm co-leading the Family Farm and Small Business Exemption Act to fix this.

Even after the full rollout months later, there were major issues. In fact, Politico called it "disastrous." I heard directly from Nebraskans who were impacted. Websites crashed repeatedly. Forms were incomplete or unable to be filled out. Millions of forms had errors and had to be reprocessed later. When families sought expert help, ED staff failed to provide adequate support. Sadly, last year wasn't a fluke. In August, ED announced they will delay the release of the FAFSA form for a second straight year. This is yet another example of bad management and incompetence from the Biden-Harris administration. As a result, last year, we saw schools forced to postpone application deadlines, push back financial aid offers, and delay student enrollment deadlines. The University of Nebraska-Lincoln extended their deadline to May 15, but not every college could make that choice. Prospective students and their families paid the price.

The FAFSA fiasco has serious consequences. Nationally, the FAFSA completion rate dropped 11.2% for high school graduates. Nebraska did better than most, but our state's FAFSA completion rate still fell 4.8%. Some students and their families had to make college decisions and pay deposits without knowing the exact cost. That's crazy. We wouldn't buy a car without knowing the cost. We wouldn't buy a home without knowing the cost. We shouldn't pressure families into college commitments without knowing the cost.

ED's FAFSA fiasco is exactly what's wrong with a massive, unaccountable federal bureaucracy. Government should put the taxpayer first, always. That's what we did when I was Governor of Nebraska. Instead, the Biden-Harris administration prioritizes radical, divisive policies. ED pushed an illegal student loan "forgiveness" program that will make Nebraska plumbers and welders pay the student loans of doctors and lawyers. ED bureaucrats also tried to undo important protections for female athletes. It should be focused on serving students and their families. It should be delivering the FAFSA form on time. I am committed to demanding better from the federal government for Nebraskans. On FAFSA, I will continue to fight for answers and reforms to ensure the process serves those who need it most. As the Senate considers new Cabinet Secretaries next year, I'm going to vet candidates thoroughly. Federal agencies should be led by individuals with management experience. We need innovative solutions to streamline bureaucracy and serve taxpayers.

THE CHILD CARE CRISIS IN NEBRASKA IS HURTING EVERYONE.

Quality, affordable child care is hard to find across Nebraska. Let's come together to solve the problem. Because it's not going to solve itself. Care for Nebraska. Solve the child care crisis.

This is an unforced error resulting in a national security risk. Perhaps the most out-of-touch Biden-Harris initiative is the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) electric vehicle mandate which would effectively ban the sale of gas-powered vehicles. I have spoken out consistently about the problems with this big government abuse of power which will quash access to affordable vehicles while increasing our reliance on a supply chain dangerously dependent on China. This week, with my support, House Republicans passed a resolution to nullify the EPA's finalized rule under the Congressional Review Act. Through this legislation and H.R. 1, the Lower Energy Costs Act, passed in the first 100 days of this Congress, House Republicans are fighting to cut big government down to size, expand opportunity, and deliver relief for American families suffering under out-of-control price increases.

Inflation is a tax which hurts us all, and federal policy must reflect the needs and interests of the American people. It's unacceptable for the Biden-Harris administration to put a radical special interest above the needs of American families who continue to be harmed by its anti-energy, anti-growth policies. There is a better way forward, and House Republicans are leading the way.

Upper Elkhorn NRD Holding A Modified Groundwater Irrigated Acre Expansion Sign-Up In October

The Upper Elkhorn NRD will be taking applications for the expansion of new groundwater irrigated acres during the month of October for the 2025 growing season. There will be up to 150 new groundwater irrigated acres allotted for the purpose of increasing irrigation efficiency. The focus of the 2024 sign up will be the same as last year, to finish off pivots with 15 acres or less that have to reverse due to an obstruction not allowing the pivot to complete the circle. The sign up is not on a first come first served basis; but, based on a ranking criteria sheet that focuses on current water quality and quantity concerns within the district. Applications will be accepted from the landowner or their power of attorney from October 1 through October 31, 2024 by appointment. The criteria ranking sheet has been updated to further meet the Board's focus for this year's expansion which also affirms that meeting the minimum score does not guarantee that the acres will be approved. Due to drought conditions, water quality issues and water quantity issues the Upper Elkhorn NRD reserves the right to deny any expansion if it might be in conflict with the Upper Elkhorn NRD Groundwater Management Plan Rules and Regulations. Application information will be posted on the NRD website at www.uenrd.org as soon as it is updated.

Navigating sustainable agriculture with North Central SARE

While it can be a bit of a buzz word at times, sustainability in agriculture is vital for the success of producers and our rural communities. Defined as a holistic approach to farming that emphasizes environmental stewardship, economic profitability, and social equity, sustainable agriculture seeks to meet present needs without compromising future generations' ability to meet their own needs.

In 1988, Congress decided to address the issue of sustainability in agriculture with a grass roots program: SARE, the Sustainable Agriculture Research and Education Program. Established with the goal of promoting ecologically sound farming practices, North Central SARE provides invaluable resources, education, and, most notably, grant opportunities that empower farmers and researchers alike. Nebraska belongs to a group of 11 other Midwest states in the North Central Region - SARE which has awarded more than $87 million worth of competitive grants since its founding, $8.9 million of which has come to Nebraska directly.

Sustainable agriculture, as articulated by North Central SARE, integrates three main principles:

Profitability: Ensuring economic viability for farmers through efficient resource management and innovative business models.

Stewardship: Promoting practices that enhance the natural resources upon which agriculture depends, such as soil health improvement and water conservation.

Quality of Life: Prioritizing rural communities' well-being by supporting fair labor practices, community engagement, and access to locally grown food.

Nebraska is home to numerous practitioners of sustainable agriculture who embody these principles in their daily operations. For example, a recent delegation from Kenya visited Center, Nebraska, to learn from a local livestock operation about how holistic and sustainable management practices can be put into action. This cross-continental exchange illustrates how Nebraska's sustainable agriculture model is not only benefiting local communities but also inspiring and influencing sustainable food systems abroad, especially in regions like Africa where food security challenges are pressing.

North Central-SARE plays a pivotal role in realizing sustainability goals by offering a range of grants tailored to support sustainable agriculture initiatives. These grants are accessible to farmers, educators, and researchers, driving innovation and adoption of sustainable practices throughout the region.

This fall, several grant opportunities for SARE funding are now available with submission deadlines closing soon.

Youth Educator Grants: These grants help youth educators encourage youth to try sustainable practices and explore sustainable agriculture as a viable career option and are up to $6,000 for 23 months. Proposal deadline is November 7th.

Farmer Rancher Grants: Directly supporting farmers and ranchers, these grants facilitate on-farm research, demonstration, and education projects that contribute to sustainable agriculture's advancement option and are up to $15,000 for one producer or $30,000 for two or more for up to 23 months. Proposal deadline is December 5th.

Partnership Grants: Encouraging collaborative efforts, partnership grants support projects involving multiple stakeholders, fostering community engagement and knowledge-sharing and are up to $50,000 for 23 months. Proposal deadline is October 17th.

By leveraging these opportunities, stakeholders across the North Central region can innovate, adapt, and lead in sustainable agriculture practices. This proactive approach not only enhances farm profitability and environmental health but also cultivates resilient rural communities prepared to meet future challenges.

For those eager to join this movement or explore grant opportunities, North Central SARE's website (northcentral.sare.org/grants) serves as a gateway to a brighter, more sustainable agricultural future. You can also reach out to the Nebraska SARE coordinators myself (Ben Beckman) at bbeckman3@unl.edu or Katja Koehler-Cole (kkoeehlercole2@unl.edu) for information or help.

EPPJ sweeps Lady Bulldog netters

CREIGHTON — EPPJ took the 'bite' out of the Bulldogs Thursday night, sweeping Creighton 25-14, 25-15 and 25-16.

"We're just trying to get better every game and stay aggressive every game," Coach Jordynn Luettel said just moments after the conclusion of the match.

"We've been working, trying to get better with our decision-making, knowing who's on because it's gonna vary night after night."

It was a night of streaks as the Wolfpack controlled the action in all three sets.

In posting their 11th victory of the season against just two losses, EPPJ dominated all the important statistics.

Hitting — EPPJ had 44 kills in the match. Seniors Sara Bode and Chloe Henn each had 14 kills. Coming off the bench, senior Natalie Burenheide had two kills in limited playing time.

Serving — The Wolfpack recorded seven ace serves in the match, led by Camry Kittelson with three, Kate Furstenau added two.

Blocks — The Wolfpack dominated the net with seven solo blocks. The trio of Bode, Henn and Kayton Zwingman each had two.

Digs — EPPJ had just 14 errors as they recorded 72 digs. Senior Kate Furstenau had 18 in the match, Braelyn Martinsen added 13.

Set assists — The duo of Kittelson and Elizabeth Moser combined for 28 of the team's 38 set assists.

Speaking about Kittelson and Moser, Coach Luettel said, "They're getting more and more strategic, so it's fun to watch them."

'Scoring explosion' leads to 50-point win over Knights

BASSETT — Scoring points in bunches is what Elgin Public-Pope John is becoming known for this season. Such was the case again Friday night as they defeated North Central 64 to 14.

The Wolfpack (now 3-1) put this game away early, scoring 32 points in the game's opening quarter. It took just three plays on their first possession for senior fullback Taylor Beckman to rumble into the endzone.

The next time they touched the ball they lit up the scoreboard again when senior quarterback Kellan Hoefler found 6'5" freshman Max Henn for a 51-yard scoring streak. Grady Druke's second two-point PAT made the score 16 to 0.

EPPJ added two more scores before the end of the quarter, both on the ground as Dylan Kolm scored on a three-yard run and Druke followed that with a two-yard score with just 10 seconds left on the clock in the first quarter. Druke added two more touchdowns in the second quarter to make the score 48 to 0.

The Wolfpack first-team offense played just one series in the second half, cashing in on a Hoefler 22-yard touchdown run. Then, reserves played the rest of the game.

EPPJ scored one more time in the fourth quarter when senior Kaeden Schwarting toted the pigskin across the goal line from inside the five-yard line. Junior Gavin Kallhoff had two two-point conversions in the second half.

North Central came into the game beaten up, suiting up just 12 players (mostly reserves). To their credit, they scored twice in the second half which was played with a running clock.

EPPJ racked up 293 yards rushing in the game. Leading the way was Druke. The junior carried the ball 16 times for 122 yards and three touchdowns. On defense he had an interception to close out the first half.

The Wolfpack completed five of seven pass attempts for 146 yards and one touchdown. On defense, Kolm led tacklers with 10, Landyn Veik and Beckman each had eight.
