City Council to discuss jurisdiction Monday night

Extraterritorial jurisdiction is on the agenda for the Elgin City Council to consider when they meet next week. The regular October meeting of the council will be held Monday night, October 2, beginning at 7:30 p.m. at city hall.

Mayor Mike Schmitt and the city council will discuss and possibly take action on extraterritorial jurisdiction extending a mile outside of the city limits. Towns and villages have the authority to implement certain requirements (primarily building regulations) for new developments made up to one mile outside of the city limits.

Concerns have been raised in recent months about the possibility of a new business, possibly a Dollar General store, being constructed on the north edge of Elgin

That's just one of the items on a tentative agenda provided to The Elgin Review Monday afternoon.

Other items on the agenda are:

- Opening bids for the sale of the city's 2004 Ford Ranger Pickup.
- Sidewalks inside the city limits. City hall recently sent out postcards asking residents to respond as to what they would like to do with sidewalks adjacent to their property.
- Take action on building permits sought by Diane Landers and Robert Evans.
- Approve a resolution for the Elgin Chamber/Community Club for a Christmas Parade on Wednesday evening, December 13.

Planning commission to resume deliberations on CO2 pipeline

Meeting to be held October 5 in Neligh

Not yet made, a decision is looming for the Antelope County Planning Commission next week.

The commission will continue deliberation on a conditional use permit being sought by Summit Carbon Solutions (SCS) to develop a carbon dioxide (CO2) pipeline through Antelope County.

The meeting will be held on Thursday, October 5, beginning at 3 p.m. in the commissioner's meeting room at the Antelope County Courthouse in Neligh. That's according to Antelope County Zoning Administrator Megan Wingate. The meeting is open to the public.

A recommendation will be made to the Antelope County Board of Commissioners to act on at a future meeting.

The company has collected more voluntarily-signed easement agreements across five states where the pipeline would go. The pipeline if completed, will be located in five states - Iowa, Minnesota, Nebraska, North and South Dakota.

Supporters of the pipeline tout how it will bolster the ethanol industry, continue growth in the ag economy while strengthening land values as well as commodity prices.

As previously reported, 33 ethanol and sustainable aviation plant partners have signed up in support of the pipeline.

Focused on winning football

Wolfpack running back Grady Dueke has a firm grip on the football as he and his teammates were 'locked in' as they defeated Boyd County Friday afternoon. The biggest game of the season takes play this Friday night when they host undefeated Ainsworth for Homecoming at Elgin Field. Good luck Wolfpack! E-R photo/DMorgan

Those individuals singing the 'Star Spangled Banner,' at the volleyball triangular held in Bartlett on September 19 were Trey, Adynn and Ridge Smith, Denna Skortcz, Olivia Heinz, Sierra Plugge, Mrs. Jaime Harrison and Mrs. Sherry Tetschner.

Nebraska's annual 'Junk Jaunt,' was held this weekend. In Bartlett, Junk Jaunt Co-ordinator, Donna Sears reported a smaller than usual turnout.

The weather was good, except for Saturday morning's heavy downpour of approximately two inches of rain in about an hour.

Donna reported shoppers at her site from Nebraska, Minnesota, South Dakota, Wisconsin, Nevada, Wyoming and Michigan. Seven Bartlett vendors participated this year.

John Schere was the guest speaker at the Bartlett Church of Faith. Dwight and Deeni Nichols, John and Melissa Schere and I enjoyed lunch and fellowship at the Bartlett Bibs and Boots after the church service.

Next week's guest speaker at the church will be Curtis Ericson from Columbus.

My Mom, Lois Schrunk, and I did a little 'Junk Jaunting,' in Bartlett and Ericson, Friday.

We enjoyed lunch at the Ranch Cafe in Ericson at the end of our expedition.

Thirty years ago next month work started on the construction of the highway west of Elgin to the junction with Highway 281. At that time this highway was known as No. 53, later being changed to No. 80 and due to Interstate Highway 80's advent in Nebraska this had to be changed to its present number 70. To honor the completion of hard surfacing west of Elgin, after three years of work, Highway 70 Association will hold a banquet at the St. Boniface auditorium on Tuesday, Oct. 8 at 7 p.m. Farmers and ranchers west of Elgin report a tremendous increase in the number of vehicles traveling Highway 70 since hard surfacing was completed.

John Hoefer received two fractured ribs, bruises about his chest and legs and a bump on his head Wednesday afternoon when a wagon passed over his body. He had been feeding his cattle at the Wm. Blunt farm around 4 p.m. Upon leaving the lots he was standing on the rear end of the tractor to drive it and the wagon through a gate when his foot slipped.

Denzel Anderson, Dallmont Erickson, and Bruce Beeson took the Angus calf, "Cornverter," to Omaha Sunday where the calf was entered in the Ak-Sar-Ben Livestock Show. The calf was purchased from Denzel last May by the Omaha World Herald and will be given to the boy or girl who wins the beef showmanship. Bruce is caring for Cornverter until his new owner is selected.

He was rushed to Antelope Memorial Hospital where the shoulder was set and Ray was released Thursday. He was mowing weeds in a ditch when the narrow front end machine tipped.

A total of 86 antique and classic autos, representing three states, were in Elgin last Saturday, Oct. 2, for the 17th annual Norfolk Antique Auto Club Tour. An outdoor catered luncheon was held that day for the tour members in the Elgin City Park, and 176 people were served. Merland and Barbara Clark gave tours of the Plantation House Bed and Breakfast to the antique car club members. They also visited the Fall Festival Craft Fair at St. Boniface Church and Auditorium, visited local business, toured the Centennial Garden and stopped at the Jim Squire home to view his Model T collection.

Soybean harvest is in full swing in the Elgin area, and both yields and quality of the crop have been excellent so far, according to local elevators and farmers. The only problem reported by the elevator managers is that the soybeans are sometimes coming in faster than they can be stored. Yields have been averaging 40 to 50 bushels per acre, with the highest yields 56 to 57 bushels per acre.

Elgin High Schools' football team built a 47-16 lead by halftime and went on to defeat Nebraska Christian, 62-22, at Central City last Friday night, Oct. 1. EHS rolled up 497 yards in total offense for the game, while Nebraska Christian gained 246 yards. Chris Sullivan gained 139 yards on 14 carries and scored four rushing touchdowns for the Eagles. He also caught three passes for 47 yards.

Elgin Knights of Columbus Holding Co. is finalizing plans and appointing committees for an addition to the KC Hall in downtown Elgin. They have purchased and torn down the former Don's Electric building, which joined the south side of the KC Hall. In its place, they plan to build a 2,520 square foot addition to their building. In order to fund the construction, the KCs will be starting a major fundraising campaign after harvest is completed this year.

Elgin High School will be celebrating its Homecoming next week. Events will include the coronation of royalty, a bonfire, parade and pep rally leading up to the volleyball and football games against Chambers on Friday, Oct. 3. Royalty candidates are Laure

A total of 17 teams competed in the Elgin EMT Golf Tournament last Sunday, Sept. 21, at the Antelope Country Club. Four teams carded the low score of nine-under par 63 for the 18-hole scramble tournament. Ties were broken by a scorecard playoff. Teams were flighted based on their scores for the second nine holes. Winning the championship flight was the team of Casey Flenniken, Kim and Al Grossnicklaus and Robert Lewis, with a 63. Placing second with a 63 was the team of Gene and Bunny Coleman, Ryan Coleman and Kyle VonBonn. The joy of 'firsts'

As parents, we often get great joy watching our children experience things for the first time. We document the first solid foods, the first time crawling, first time walking, or sleeping through the night. It's fun to see them trick-or-treat for the first time or experience an egg hunt on Easter. Watching them experience new things often makes us just as happy.

The early years are filled with a lot of "firsts". As our children age, they are fewer and farther between. Which, in some ways, makes the firsts even sweeter. Now that we're hosting our exchange daughter, it's been fun watching her as she experiences all new things here in America.

Our newest member of the family has been here a little over three weeks. Just in that short amount of time, we've had the pleasure of creating some memorable experiences for her. We took her to her first concert, introduced her to Tex-Mex, she rode her first school bus, and attended an American football game. Soon, we'll get to experience Homecoming, sports activities, and other school events.

She's also created some new experiences for us and our children as well. She's introduced new meals, new music, and different opinions on things. It's been fun exchanging cultures and having our kids experience new things as well.

We created an entire bucket list for the time she will be with our family. We won't be able to do everything on the list, but it gives us plenty of fun ideas or dinner options when we have free time. It got me thinking, I'm putting so much time and energy investing in this child, but do I invest as much thought into my own children?

I'd like to think that I do. We always try to take them on fun vacations or play family board games. But wouldn't it be fun to create a family bucket list? Maybe there's a new restaurant you have wanted to try, or a museum in a nearby city to explore? I've heard of families coming up with a summer bucket list and that's a fun idea too, and probably easier since the kids are out of school.

Whatever the season, having a list of things to see, do, try, or eat can be a fun way of bringing the family together. We put a whiteboard on the refrigerator so that anyone can add to the list, but also see what's already been done. This allows everyone to feel part of the experience as we navigate these next 10 months.

My prayer is that I continue to do this for my own family. I would encourage you to do something similar as well. It's so easy to get caught up in the day-to-day activities that we forget to take the time to create special moments with the ones we love. But when we do, those moments can last a lifetime.

So, if you're looking for a way to create lasting memories with your family, I encourage you to start a bucket list. It doesn't have to be anything big or expensive, just a few simple things you can all enjoy together. Having that little reminder and a list of pre-thought-out activities can make it easier when life gets busy. Then share the list with the family to keep everyone motivated and excited about making the memories happen.

Comments are welcome and can be sent to talesofatiredmomma@gmail.com.

"To be persuasive, we must be believable; to be believable, we must be credible; credible, we must be truthful."

Legislature ponders improved public input

Nothing ruins a public hearing on a legislative bill like the public showing up.

Wait, what?

A former boss said it years ago at the end of a particularly long day of hearings at the State Capitol.

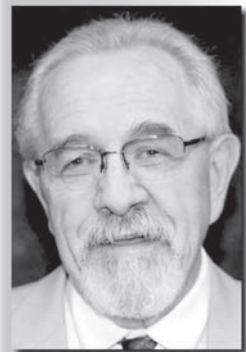

At the time, I agreed. I still feel that way at times. The same message over and over from the public gets a little tedious. Just give me a show of hands, for or against.

If you don't have anything different to say, don't. Just use a sign-in sheet. Don't call us, we'll call you.

On the heels of one of the most tumultuous sessions in recent memory, Speaker of the Legislature John Arch from Omaha is looking for ways to make public testimony easier and more inclusive. Lawmakers will consider feedback provided by a study resolution.

CAPITOL VIEW

Nebraska Press Association

Statehouse Correspondent
J.L. Schmidt

What that is going to look like remains to be seen. But I have some thoughts.

Background, in case you forgot. Strong opposition of several bills, filibustering from a couple Omaha senators and almost daily protests which spilled over into the Capitol Rotunda (right outside the legislative chamber) and into the balcony of said chamber.

At one point the crowd tossed feminine hygiene products from the balcony onto the floor of the chamber while senators were debating. Arrests were made.

Not the way the public voice should be heard.

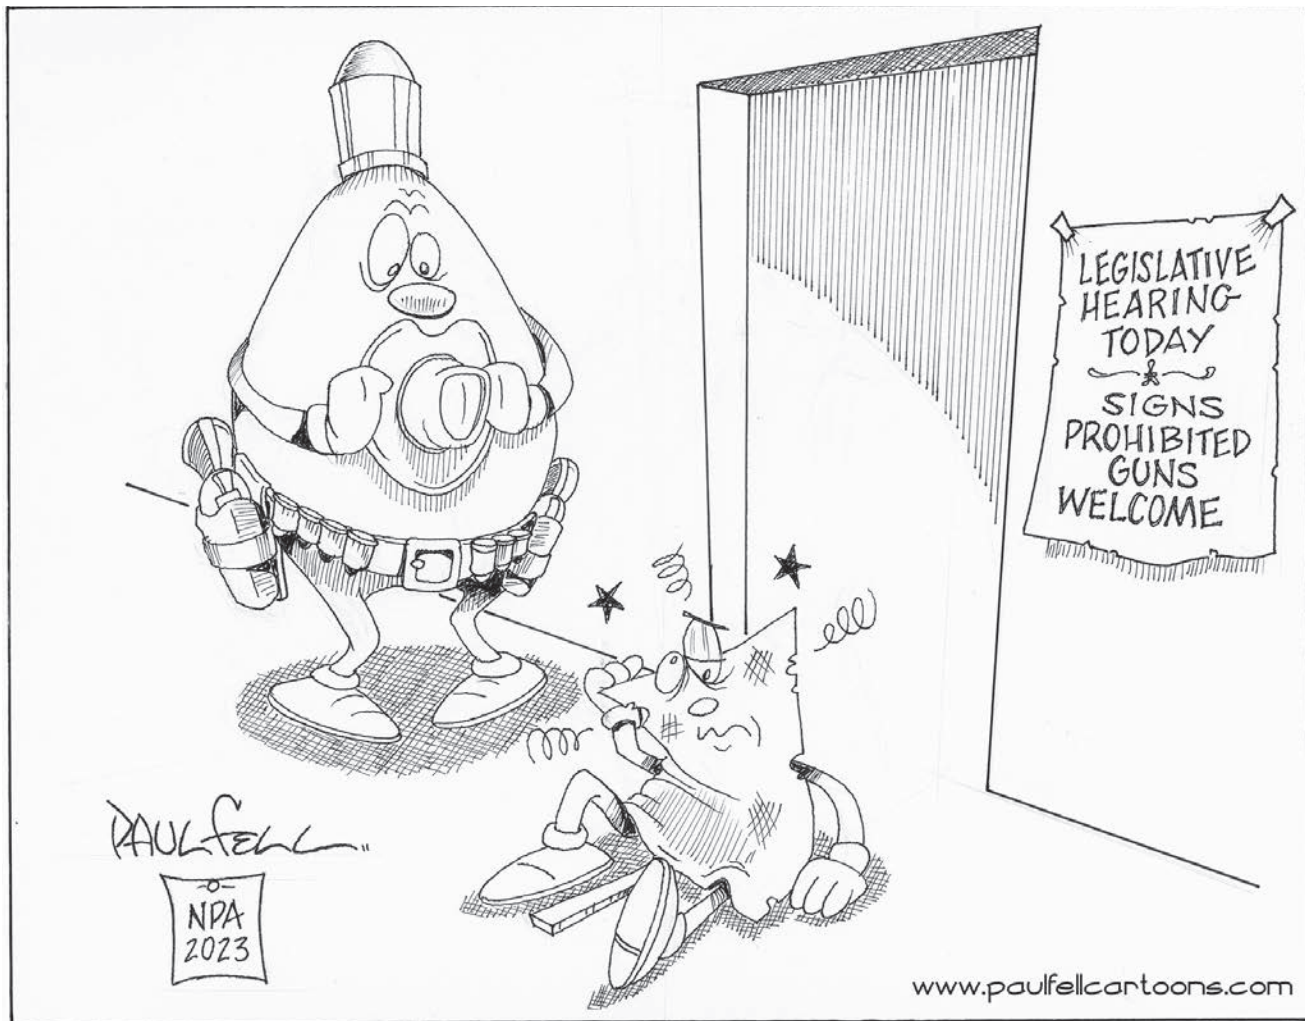

Hearings on guns, abortion, LGBTQ issues, voter identification and election reform drew hundreds to testify, observe or lobby. Others called or wrote senators. Many came to protest or watch debate. But many also left frustrated at not being able to testify or angry about how a hearing had been managed.

Arch said he hopes his measure (LR179) will provide lawmakers who convene in January with guidelines on how Nebraskans, often dubbed the second house to the state's one-house Legislature, can have their voices heard and engage productively with lawmakers.

"To ensure fair and useful dialogue, there must be a standard of respect and decorum in place for both the public, that observes, engages, and testifies in front of the Legislature, and the members of the Legislature," the resolution says. Please note, that decorum thing is a two-way street.

Currently, legislative committee chairs set most guidelines for hearing testimony. When time is short or the list of testifiers is long, chairs often set time limits on individual testimony with green, yellow and red lights to warn speakers. At times, chairs have limited the total time allocated for proponents, opponents and neutral testimony or have allowed alternating blocks of time, so that committee members can hear different views before the hour gets late and attention wanes.

The measure also provides for a study of state laws, rules and regulations, and the Legislature's official and unofficial practices and procedures concerning public participation. It also calls for an examination of "constitutional provisions relevant to the public's right to access the State Capitol and attend public activities."

Some say that smacks of limited access, but Sen. Tom Briese of Albion, who chairs the Legislature's Executive Board, denied there was any desire to curb public access. "Enhancing access has to be done in an orderly and fair manner," he said.

Arch invited 13 organizations to ask their members to answer the question: "What do you consider to be the top five areas of concern with respect to the public's ability to effectively engage in the legislative process?" Answers provided by the organizations will then be used to solicit ideas for addressing those top concerns, which could then be turned into recommendations for action.

Even though there is no place like Nebraska, the study also will include a survey of how other states handle public participation.

Some thoughts:

The state Fire Marshal needs to set limits on the number of people who can be in the building at certain times. Likewise, gatherings in the balcony and the rotunda should be limited to a specific audience size and the limits enforced.

Hearings should be staggered so the "big" issues don't happen on the same day.

The number of bills that can be introduced should be reduced.

Those wishing to testify should fill out a form stating their intent and summarizing their top 5 points. The forms should be available on-line or in person at least two weeks in advance of the hearing and should be submitted 48 hours before the hearing.

Proponents, opponents, and those who are neutral should be allowed five speaking spots per hearing.

This is a real challenge and a great opportunity. Here's hoping lawmakers take advantage.

Chief Justice, Nebraska Supreme Court

The Nebraska Judicial Branch is commemorating the Legislature's passage of Neb. Rev. Stat. §25-2401 - Interpreters; public policy. This milestone not only acknowledges our commitment to a fair and impartial legal system, but also highlights the need for continued progress and improvement to ensure deaf, hard of hearing, and limited English proficient (LEP) court users have access to our courts and probation services.

Before the implementation of language access services in the Nebraska Judicial Branch, individuals who did not speak English faced significant barriers when seeking justice. They often struggled to understand court proceedings, couldn't effectively communicate with their attorneys, and were at a disadvantage when trying to defend their rights; likewise, judges, jurors, and lawyers could not understand non-English speaking litigants and witnesses.

However, half a century ago Nebraska took a significant step forward with the introduction of language access services, changing the landscape of our legal system. The establishment of language access services demonstrated the state's dedication to upholding the principles of the U.S. Constitution, including the right to due process and a fair trial. This commitment reaffirmed that justice should not be limited by one's proficiency in the English language.

Over the past five decades, the Nebraska Judi-

Americans should keep their full Social Security checks

Since its creation in 1935, Social Security has been the backbone of most Americans' retirement plans.

For decades, workers paid into Social Security via the payroll tax each pay period. According to the Social Security Administration, nearly nine out of ten people aged 65 and older received a Social Security benefit as of June 30 of this year.

From the beginning, Social Security benefits were untaxed, and rightly so. Think about it: why would the government send you 12 checks a year and then ask for money back the following year? For nearly five decades, Social Security benefits remained tax-free, respecting the fact that seniors had been paying into the program via the payroll tax each pay period. In 1983, 50% of Social Security benefits became taxable. In 1993, President Clinton signed a bill into law to make 85% of benefits taxable. This double taxation remains the law today. It must change.

When I became Governor, Nebraska taxed Social Security benefits at the state level as well. Working with the Legislature, I proudly signed LB873 into law to eliminate this tax and provide needed relief to Nebraska seniors. We did it in a fiscally responsible way. We gradually phased in the tax cuts over a period of years while controlling our state government spending.

This was not a Republican priority or a Democrat priority. It was a Nebraska priority. Every Nebraska State Senator voted to pass the tax cut in a strong bipartisan endorsement of this common-sense idea. 100% support, and 0% opposition.

This policy is working for Nebraska, enabling more people to keep their hard-earned dollars in retirement. Now, it is ready for America. That's why I'm introducing the Social Security Check Tax Cut Act. My bill would bring the same policy we implemented in Nebraska to all Americans and eliminate the double tax on Social Security benefits. It starts with a fiscally responsible phase-out of taxes, beginning with a 10% cut in year one and increasing to 20% in year two. Like any tax cut, there must be a plan to make up the difference. There are numerous examples of wasteful federal spending that can be reigned to pay for this.

I believe all Social Security benefits should be completely tax-free, but big changes usually don't happen overnight. My bill, the Social Security Check Tax Cut Act, is the first step toward completely eliminating the double tax on Social Security benefits.

Passing my bill would allow a typical senior to save $800 in 2025. That would mean $800 more to pay for visits to grandkids, groceries, medication, utilities, and more. That's 187 gallons of milk or 208 gallons of gas at current prices - real relief in this time of rising costs and stubborn inflation. It would mean government stops taking money you earned, and are entitled to, out of your pocket.

My bill is the first step in boosting the retirement income of millions of seniors in Nebraska and across the country. I will continue working with my colleagues until we see the same kind of bipartisan support we saw in Nebraska.

Celebrating our new Nebraska record

At the end of last month, Nebraska made history. Thousands of people streamed into Lincoln's Memorial Stadium, full of excitement and anticipation. Husker, Maverick, Loper, and Wildcat fans cheered as the teams emerged. Eventually, the loudspeaker carried an announcement across the stadium: Nebraska had just broken a world record. As we often say, there is no place like Nebraska.

On August 30, an unbelievable 92,003 fans attended a pair of Nebraska women's volleyball matches. The first was between the University of Nebraska-Kearney and Wayne State College, and the second was between the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and the University of Nebraska-Omaha. That match set a new world record for women's sports attendance, beating out the attendance for a UEFA Champions League soccer match in Barcelona, Spain last year.

I'm proud of the dedication and planning it took to break a world record at our UNL-UNO matchup. Nebraskans supported and encouraged each other as they took to the stands and cheered for their teams. "Volleyball Day in Nebraska" took months of preparation to pull off, but the University of Nebraska did it successfully!

This is no new trend. Nebraska is a state defined by community and collaboration. We come together to accomplish goals that will benefit those around us. And college sports are an especially great tradition — the Huskers have had 306 regular-season sellouts in a row, and we've led the NCAA in attendance each year over the past decade.

In response to this exciting new record, I'm leading a resolution with Senator Ricketts that will celebrate women's collegiate athletics in Nebraska. Our resolution will recognize the historic Volleyball Day in Nebraska on a federal level.

The resolution notes that Volleyball Day in Nebraska set a new world record for attendance at a women's sporting event, as well as several other records. The event exceeded the previous attendance record for NCAA women's volleyball attendance — the new record of 92,003 fans in attendance is almost five times more than the old record of 18,755! The August 30 match also exceeded the NCAA women's volleyball regular-season attendance record and Nebraska's Memorial Stadium's attendance record.

Our resolution specifically honors Nebraska's former Coach Pat Sullivan, who started the University of Nebraska volleyball program in 1975. It also honors former Coach Terry Pettit, who built the volleyball program from 1977 to 1999, and current Coach John Cook, who has sustained excellence in the program since 2000.

Nebraska's athletic programs are a source of pride, joy, and community for players, alumni, and fans alike. Our Nebraska universities are home to hundreds of high-achieving athletes who have worked hard to get where they are. Over 200,000 alumni in all 50 states and in countries around the world are proud to call UNL their alma mater.

This Senate resolution celebrates a special day for women, volleyball players, and Nebraskans.

I'm proud to bring well-deserved recognition to this great accomplishment.

Justice

cial Branch has taken important steps to guarantee that individuals who are deaf, hard of hearing, or who have limited English language skills have the same access to justice as English-speaking citizens. These efforts have included:

• Interpreters and Translators: The provision of professional interpreters and translators to assist individuals who require language assistance in court proceedings. These skilled professionals ensure that non-English speakers can effectively understand and participate in the legal process.

- Education: Nebraska has invested in educating judges, attorneys, and court staff to better understand the unique challenges faced by individuals who are deaf, hard of hearing or LEP. This has fostered a more inclusive and understanding legal environment.
- Access to Legal Information: Making legal information available in multiple languages has been crucial. Documents are now accessible in languages other than English, helping individuals navigate the legal system more confidently.
- Technology: Embracing technology has further expanded language access. Remote interpretation services have become invaluable tools in ensuring language access, especially in rural areas.

The 50th anniversary of language access in the Nebraska Judicial Branch is not only a moment to celebrate our achievements, but also to look forward. Last year, interpreters of 42 different languages were used in Nebraska's courts. We will continue to invest in language access services and ensure that those services evolve to meet the changing needs of our diverse communities. Here are some important steps for the future:
• Effective Communication: Ongoing education and resources for court staff so they are more confident in communicating and engaging with court users in their communities who are deaf, hard of hearing, or limited in their English-speaking skills.
• Community Outreach:

Building trust within linguistic minority communities is an ongoing effort. Courts have engaged in outreach initiatives to educate court users in these communities about their rights and the services available to them.
• Data Collection: Additional data on the use of language access services will help the Court make informed decisions about the allocation and improvement of existing services.
As we celebrate this milestone, let us reaffirm our commitment to the principles of justice, equality, and inclusivity that have guided us for the past 50 years. Language access in the Nebraska Judicial Branch is not just a policy -- it's a testament to our dedication to providing justice for all.

West Holt snaps EPPJ winning streak

ATKINSON — The Wolfpack saw their 11-match winning streak snapped Saturday afternoon at the Atkinson-West Holt triangular.

After beating Plainview in their first match, the Wolfpack fell to West Holt in two sets 25-22 and 26-24.

Against the Huskies, EPPJ managed just 24 kills on 63 swings. Senior Ashlynn Charf had nine kills on 30 swings, but the rest of the team managed just 15 kills as the Huskies didn't allow EPPJ to develop any momentum with the front row. Baylee Busted recorded 22 of the team's 23 set assists in the match. On the down side, EPPJ had trouble digging the Huskies' attacks as they posted 30 errors.

Earlier in the day, EPPJ swept Plainview 27-25 and 25-14. Chloe Henn led hitters with 13 kills, Charf had six kills and Sara Bode added five. Busted was credited with 24 set assists. Digs again proved to be a problem as they had 37 errors in the match.

Wolfpack grind down BC Spartans 22-12 Friday

ELGIN — Boyd County stepped onto the field anticipating victory Friday afternoon. Elgin Public-Pope John sent them home with a 22 to 12 loss.

Reaffirming their place as one of the best teams in Northeast Nebraska, the Wolfpack ground out a victory by outmuscling a vastly improved Spartan team.

"I thought our kids played well ... a good physical game," Coach Greg Wemhoff said.

Both teams relied on the ground game to move the ball down the field. The Wolfpack completed just two passes for 32 of their 254 yards of total offense.

While the offense scored three touchdowns and two two-point conversions, it was the Wolfpack defense who rose up time and time again to stop the Spartans. In essence, the Wolfpack defense bent, but didn't break.

EPPJ took the opening kickoff and marched down the field, all on running plays to get inside the Spartans' 10-yard line. However, Boyd County's defense stiffened and forced a turnover on downs.

When the Wolfpack got the ball back, they took it all the

Net play key as EPPJ tops NC, Riverside

ELGIN — For the past six years, Nebraska Christian has had the Wolfpack's number on the volleyball court. Not since 2016 had EPPJ defeated the Eagles. That all changed Thursday night as the Wolfpack swept the Eagles 25-23 and 25-21 in a triangular played at St. Boniface Auditorium.

The two teams took each other's best shots but, in the end, the Wolfpack won the big points to claim the match.

In Set #1, the score was tied at 23-all when middle hitter Chloe Henn hammered the ball for an ace to set up set point. A hitting error by the Eagles gave EPPJ the first set.

Then in Set #2, the score was tied at 21-all before EPPJ closed out the match with four straight points. During the four-point run, Henn teamed up with Sara Bode to stuff Eagle Sheridan Falk's spike at the net.

The Wolfpack benefitted from some strong play by two underclassman. Camry Kittelson had three kills and seven digs in the match. Sophomore Kayton Zwingman finished with four kills, one solo block and two digs.

"We wanted to beat them," Kittelson. "We went out strong and played as hard as we can."

EPPJ had 28 kills on 70 swings. Henn led with 10 kills, Ashlynn Charf had eight. Baylee Busted had 24 of the team's 25 set assists.

In the Wolfpack's other match, Riverside put up a good fight but wore down as EPPJ won the match 25-17 and 25-19.

EPPJ never trailed in the first set. A kill by Kittelson gave the home team a 19 to 14 advantage. From there, EPPJ traded points to close out the set.

In Set #2, Riverside made a run to cut the Wolfpack's lead to 19 to 16. Charf put together back-to-back aces to ignite a six-to-one run to close out the set and the match. Adding kills at the net in the latter stages of the match were Bode (2) and Zwingman.

Garry got it!

I made a promise, I would always remember.

In a couple of days it will be four years, four long years since the passing of my good friend Garry Lawyer. Cancer took him away from us just like cancer has taken away friends and members of your family.

Every person has markers in their lives where the path they chose to follow suddenly veers off in another direction. Some for the better, some for worse. For me, there have been several like the day I met my wife for the first time. There was the call I received from my mentor in the late 80s wanting to hire me to run one of his weekly newspapers, and then there were the days when you meet the friends who stay with you through the decades, celebrating the good times and working through the bad times.

Garry was the first person I met after moving to Grant. He was outside on one of those January days in South-west Nebraska where the weather makes you forget about winter. He was outside tinkering with one of his classic cars.

Little did I know then the adventures that would later come.

He got it. He understood that life is meant to be lived. I don't know where he found the answer, but he did. He was lighthearted and didn't take himself too seriously and that led to moments of great amusement. Garry liked to make people laugh, and tried not to let proprieties stand in the way too much, as was stated in his obituary. He took pride in his collection of cars that he would take to cruise nights and car shows. He was especially proud of his '69 Cougar, which he'd ordered directly from the factory, his Thunderbird, his Blue Falcon, and his beloved Galaxy, which he tinkered on for over a decade.

He liked to make people laugh, I wish I was as good at it as he was, it just depends on the setting I guess.

At Rotary held on Wednesdays over the noon hour, each member was required to have two programs during the year. Most of us would have someone come in and talk about this or that, other members would do their own presentation. There was this minister who chose to talk about how when he would check into a motel, as part of his travels, the first thing he would do would put a picture of his wife on top of the TV set. He said it helped him to remain faithful.

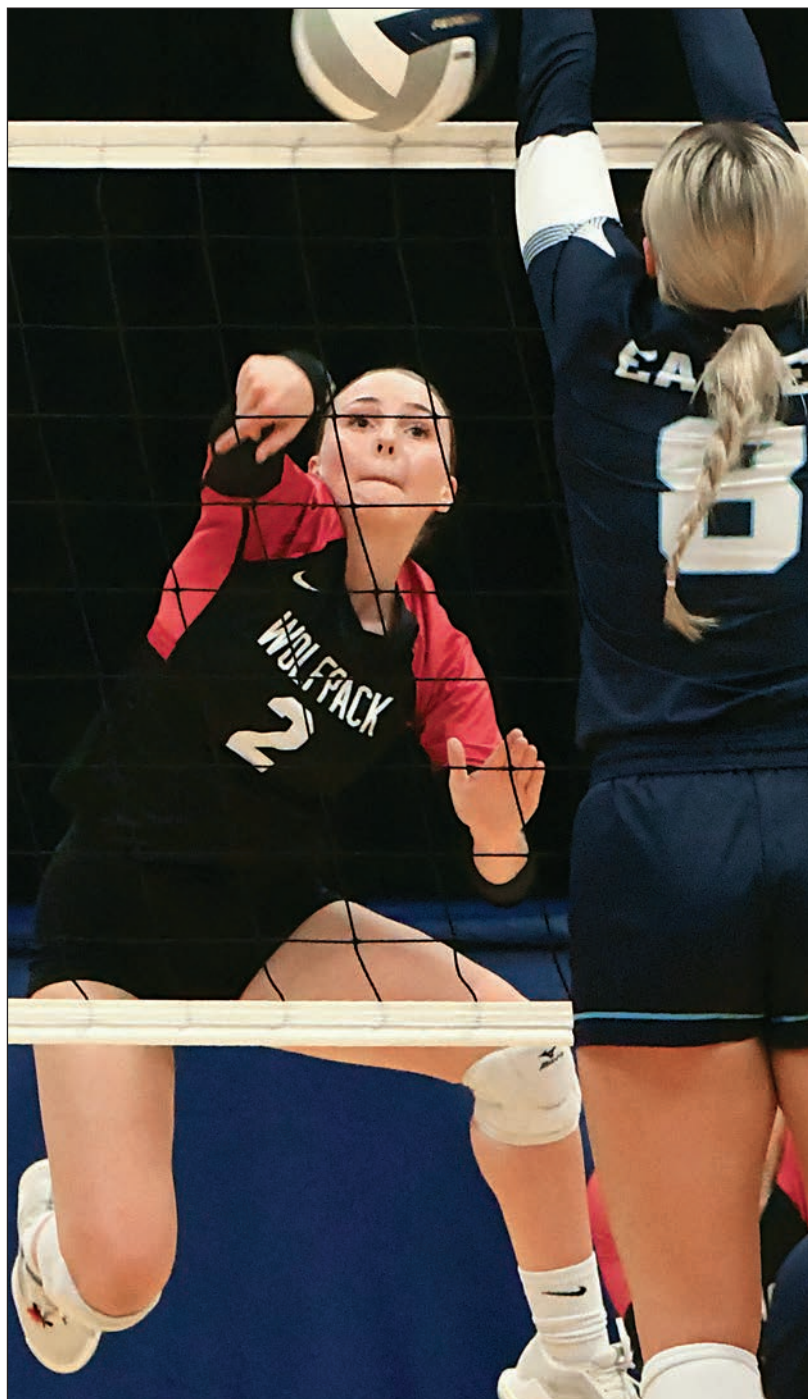

Sitting in the back of the room, Garry spoke up and asked the preacher where he could get a picture of her for when he was away from home. The Rotarians burst into laughter because Garry, in his own way, found a way to lighten the moment.

Then there was the time when we were coming back from one of the Grant Plainsmen basketball team's big victories on the road. We stopped at a truck stop to get something to eat. Seated in one of those four-person booths across from one another, we began a conversation with a waitress who would rather talk than do her job. Somehow we talked about hosting exchange students, I think at the time we were hosting one from Brazil. She said she remembered her family hosting one from New Mexico. Garry kicked me under the table but I knew what he was thinking. Then, later, just before we left and after Garry had put a tip on the table, she mentioned the people from a neighboring town saying

Fall pasture management

While the first frost of the year isn't here yet, how we manage pastures in the fall can impact plant health through the winter and ultimately production next spring. Are you giving your pastures proper care this fall?

As temperatures cool, plants that overwinter are working on building up reserves before they become dormant. Cool season species like brome, wheatgrass, bluegrass and fescue will often produce a flush of fall growth if moisture is available. Since this flush stays in a vegetative state, quality can be high.

For plants that have been stressed by high temperatures and drought this summer, grazing now can actually deplete energy reserves going into the winter. This may result in decreased productivity and increased weed pressure next spring. Stockpiling this growth for use after the plant is dormant this winter may be a better option. This maximizes productivity this fall while still maintaining forage quality, albeit a bit lower than if grazed fresh.

For many of our native warm season species, their annual growth is wrapping up. While grazing these plants now won't have as big of impact as actively growing cool season species, they too can be stressed by overgrazing in the fall. Pastures that are grazed in the fall this year should be given a break next year during critical growing periods in early summer if possible to rejuvenate plant vigor.

In mixed pasture where cool season species are invasive, there may be opportunity to control or reduce these grasses with grazing. Animals grazing these pastures will graze the new growth harder, with limited utilization of more mature warm season species. Keep a close eye on grazing progress and pull animals once the cool season species have been used and they begin selecting warm season grasses. Follow this with more targeted cool season grazing next spring to weaken the unwanted plants and open the door for warm season grasses to fill in.

And speaking of unwanted plants, fall is an ideal time to control perennial and winter annual or biennial species in pastures. Biennial thistles like musk, plumless, scotch, and bull growing now are new plants that started from seed this year, forming a new rosette. When trying to control biennial thistles, spraying the new growth of the rosette means better control than after plants have bolted next spring. This is true for all winter annual species like downy brome, pennycress, mustard, marestail, sheperdspurse, and prickly lettuce.

Perennial weeds can be better controlled by fall applications too. While spring applications are our best option for control, fall spraying can deplete energy reserves and stress the plant as we head into winter. This weakening when maintained for several years, paired with spring control to prevent seed production can slowly shrink even hard to control weed patches over time. The best candidates are perennials that have new growth which can better absorb chemical, like leafy spurge and Canada thistle. Be sure to spray before leaves change to fall colors, as the amount of herbicide that will be translocated to the roots will be lessened after this occurs.

Fall usually is focused on harvest and it may be easy to push pasture considerations to the side, but a little effort now could mean a big impact on pasture productivity next spring. Manage late season grazing to give pastures time to recover before dormancy, or use selective grazing to knock back invasive cool season species. Right now is also time to plan for control of troublesome perennial and biennial weeds like our invasive thistles. Actual spraying should wait till closer to a killing frost. Control measures this fall can make a big impact on numbers next spring.

Tales

“they don’t know nothin about nothin.” The town happened to be Garry’s home town. As she walked away, Garry put the tip back in his pocket. We laughed about that story for years.

Their home was the place for many after hour business gatherings.

His wife Ronda was the hostess and nothing was left to chance. The lady could cook with the best of them as we found out, spending many holidays there.

He loved his mother in-law although she drove him crazy at times. Like the time he and his wife went to their cabin at the lake for a relaxing weekend and how it turned into something different due to having to blanch the sweet corn in boiling water and can it in 100-degree heat.

Like all good stories, they are never as good being told as they are living in the moment.

The best thing about the man was his honesty. He was a man of his word. He wasn’t the kind of guy to look you in the eye

Poll: Rural residents are pessimistic about present and future

Rural Nebraskans are increasingly pessimistic about their current and future well-being, according to the 2023 Nebraska Rural Poll. Over the past 28 years, the Rural Poll has asked respondents about their current well-being and outlook on their future. This year, 27% of respondents indicated they are worse off than they were five years ago, up from 21% last year and 11% in 2021. This is the highest level since 2009, when 28% believed they were worse off.

The increase in pessimism was matched with a decrease in optimism. This year, 45% of rural Nebraskans surveyed believe they are better off compared to five years ago, down from 50% last year. Nebraskans’ optimism about the future has also trended downward over the past four years. Thirty-nine percent believe they will be better off 10 years from now. This has steadily declined from 52% in 2019.

Similarly, the proportion stating they will be worse off in a decade increased from 22% last year to 27% this year.

Despite increasing pessimism, more respondents believe they are better off compared to five years ago than say they are worse off (45% compared to 27%). This is also true of their long-term outlook: 39% say they will be better off 10 years from now, compared to 27% who believe

Chopped Pickle Relish and Refrigerator Pickles

Use up your end-of-summer cucumber and onions with these delicious recipes.

Good day,
The weather has been perfect these last few days and I am loving it! Fall is in the air.

I know a lot of you have been really busy canning and finishing up those few vegetables that you just finished picking. This week, I will share a couple of recipes maybe you could use.

I make these refrigerator pickles every year. They are really easy and I love that you can keep them in the fridge. The grand kids love them. My daughter Emily made quite a few quarts, their family loves them.

If you like relish

CHOPPED PICKLE RELISH

12 large cucumbers
10 medium onion
4 Tbls pickling salt
5 cups vinegar
6 Tbls mustard seed

8 green peppers
(use some red for color)
5 cups sugar
3 Tbls celery seed

Slice cucumber lengthwise and remove seeds. Grind cucumbers, peppers, and onions with a course grinder. Add salt. Stir and let stand overnight. Drain.
Combine vinegar, sugar, mustard and celery seed. Pour over the cucumber mixture, heat to a boil.
Simmer for 20 minutes. Seal in hot jars. Makes 8 pints.

REFRIGERATOR PICKLES

4 cups sugar
1/2 cup pickling salt
1 1/2 tsp celery seed
4 cups vinegar
1 1/2 tsp whole mustard seed

1/4 tsp alum
Dill and onion and slicer cucumbers

Do Not Heat Ingredients! Stir until dissolved.
Slice cucumbers small and pack tight with onion and dill. Pour the vinegar mixture over the cucumbers and seal up.
Turn the jars 2-3 times a day. Store jars in the fridge. Keeps really well! These are delicious!
NOTE: Can make 3-4 quarts, depending on how you pack the jars and how many onions you add.

How long could you go without using your phone?
Maybe a day.
Is there any food you won't eat?

Typing very fast.
If you had your own personal action figure, what two accessories would it come with?
A volleyball and a book.
If you were stuck on a desert island with a working television and could only watch two movies the entire time you were there, what two movies would you pick?
'The Blind Side' and 'Beauty and the Beast.'
What is the most difficult thing about being a setter?
It's knowing what each hitter likes, what they want because some of them want a little bit higher set.
Is there any skill in volleyball you do not possess but wish you did?
I wish I could jump higher because then I could probably block better.
What is the most common quote or phrase you hear from your coach?
"Do everything with a purpose."

way to the endzone. Running backs Gage Thiessen, Grady Drueke and Taylor Beckman battered the Spartans' defensive front. Offensive linemen Jarek Erickson, Samuel Hemenway and Nick Anderson provided holes for the backs to run through. EPPJ went 60 yards in 11 plays with Drueke getting the touchdown from a yard out. With just over a minute gone in the second quarter, the Wolfpack took an 8 to 0 lead. The teams traded possessions before the Spartans put together a drive which culminated in a three-yard touchdown run by Brett Koenig. With the Wolfpack up 8 to 6 in the latter stages of the second quarter, EPPJ lit up the scoreboard one more time before halftime. A quarterback sack by Blake Henn forced the Spartans to punt from deep in their territory. The Wolfpack got the ball back on the Spartans 33-yard line with just 40 seconds left on the clock. They needed just 27 seconds to score. Quarterback Karson Kallhoff connected with Blake Henn who sliced across the middle

Borer leads CC runners at Tom Dickey Invite

Once again, Wolfpack runners laced up their running shoes and competed in cross country action last week.

Emma Kinney

On Friday afternoon they were among the many schools who participated in the Tom Dickey Invitational held at the Albion Country Club. Coach Tiffany Moser's group of runners didn't bring home any medals, but again showed signs of better days ahead.

In the girls division, Wisner-Pilger senior Alea Rasmussen won with a time of 21:03.20. Jovie Borer finished 20th with a time of 25:22.60. Right behind her was Wolfpack freshman Samantha Stuhr who came in with a time of 25:28.70. Emma Kinney placed 35th with a time of 28:12.00.

Briese to become new state treasurer

Governor Jim Pillen announced his appointment of Senator Tom Briese as state treasurer. Briese will assume the duties of the office on Nov. 1.

He will complete the remaining term of John Murante, who will become director of the Nebraska Public Employees Retirement Systems (NPERS). "Sen. Briese has the respect of his peers and has been a great representative for District 41 in the Legislature," said Gov. Pillen.

"He's a proven leader on tax policy reform, which will serve him well in his new role as treasurer."

Briese was raised in Albion, NE and is a fourth-generation family farmer.

He was elected to the Nebraska Legislature in 2016 and re-elected in 2020.

Briese has a degree in agricultural economics from the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and a juris doctor from the University of Nebraska College of Law.

"I am honored to be selected by Gov. Pillen to serve Nebraskans as treasurer," said Sen. Briese.

In the boys division, sophomore Micah Cuevas of Boone Central won the 5K race with a time of 17:33.20, more than seven seconds ahead of second place runner Tristan McLeod of Elkhorn Valley. Wolfpack runner Isaac Hemenway clocked in at 22:47.50 to place 47th.

Next up for the EPPJ cross country team is the Battle Creek Invite on Friday, Sept. 29.

of the field for 24 yards. Three plays later Kallhoff found Thiessen on the left side of the formation and he took it eight yards for a touchdown and a 14 to 6 lead at halftime.

The Spartans took the second half kickoff and methodically moved down the field. With Hudson Hoffman carrying the ball they got down to the 13-yard line before turning the ball over on downs.

The teams then traded possessions before the Wolfpack's third and final touchdown of the game. Taking over on the Spartans' 34-yard line, it took just one play to put the pigskin in the endzone. Fullback Taylor Beckman took a handoff and bulled his way 34 yards into the endzone. Henn's two-point conversion gave EPPJ a 22 to 6 lead with under 10 minutes left in the game.

The Spartans took the ensuing kickoff and slowly moved the ball down the field. The clock ran down to just over two minutes left in the game before Hoffman punched it into the endzone. The defensive play of the game came on the two-point conversion attempt. Linebacker Dylan Kolm zeroed in on the ball carrier and, with the help of several teammates, stuffed the play to keep it a two-possession game.

"We knew we had to make that play and we made it," Kolm said just moments after the game ended.

Boyd County got the ball back with just over a minute left to play. They didn't have it long as quarterback Charlie Adams was picked off by Gage Thiessen to seal the game for the Wolfpack. The victory boosted EPPJ's record to 4-1.

EPPJ racked up 222 yards on the ground. Credit the offensive line for much of that. Drueke had a career-best 96 yards on 17 carries as he split time at tailback with Thiessen.

On defense, Kolm led EPPJ with 15 tackles. Beckman had 12 and Thiessen had 10 to shut down the Spartans.

Up next for the Wolfpack is a Friday night matchup against Ainsworth and NU recruit Carter Nelson. Kickoff will be at 7 p.m. at Elgin Field.
