Parenting in this day and age

I often hear people say things like, "What's wrong with kids these days?" Or complaints about the current generation.

This may not be as popular, but I find myself asking, "What's wrong with parents these days?"

It's fascinating to me that people are not correlating parenting with the outcome. The more time I spend with other parents and their children, the more I'm seeing. When did it become the norm for the children to be in charge?

Time and time again I see parents taking a back seat. Instead of discipline, parents are giving in to their kids' every whim and demand. In fact, I've actually heard someone use the expression that their kid demanded something. Wait.. what? You mean, they asked for something? Kids are not in a position to make demands.

Perhaps I'm old school in my parenting style, but I believe that parents should be the authority. That means my kids can ask, and I have the option to say "no". It seems that somewhere along the line, parents lately feel that is no longer a valid answer.

I was very familiar with the word "no", otherwise I would have gotten the cat I asked for about 75 times growing up. My other favorite was when my mom said "maybe". Which, 99% of the time, really meant "no" but at least I felt like I had a shot and a small sliver of hope.

I tell my kids that when we tell them "no" it's because we feel that is what is best for them. We aren't trying to be mean; we are truly trying to do the right thing. That may mean limiting sweets or electronic time. Sometimes it's not a good time to do something, or they have too much homework, or it's late on a school night. Sometimes it's because they're asking for something expensive or they

Defending America's interests

From its creation by President James Monroe in 1823 until today, the Monroe Doctrine has been a cornerstone of U.S. foreign policy.

This policy asserts foreign interference in the Americas will be met with American resolve, shaping generations of diplomatic, military, and security decisions.

From Cold War efforts to halt the expansion of communism to modern questions of sovereignty, the doctrine continues to frame America's interactions with our neighbors, politically, economically, and on practical matters like border security.

Last week, U.S. law enforcement, supported by the U.S. military, arrested Venezuelan president Nicolás Maduro to face federal criminal charges. Maduro, along with his wife and others from his government, was first indicted in 2020 on U.S. narcoterrorism charges, with President Biden increasing the reward for Maduro's arrest in January 2025.

I am pleased Maduro was arrested without loss of American lives or extended military engagement.

Until Saturday, Maduro had served as leader of Venezuela despite broad international consensus his government stole the most recent election, preventing pro-democracy opposition from taking power.

Russia, Communist China, Iran, and other rogue states were key supporters of Maduro's regime. While

FROM THE HILL

Congressman Adrian Smith

Venezuela's future must lie in the hands of its people, celebrations across the Venezuelan diaspora provided a strong reminder of their outcry for democracy, and it remains in the best interest of both Americans and Venezuelans for the future Venezuela to be free, prosperous, and independent.

Beyond slowing the flow of illicit drugs at their source, we have also enhanced our hemispheric interests through improved border security over the past year.

From 2021 through 2024, at least 385 individuals on terrorism watch lists were apprehended at our southern border, while in fiscal year 2024 alone more than 9,000 pounds of fentanyl were seized between ports of entry according to Customs and Border Patrol.

After years of a porous southern border and catch-and-release policies under the Biden administration, month-by-month encounters of illegal immigrants have decreased by nearly 90% and catch-and-release has ended under President Trump.

While the Trump administration directives have driven the decrease in illegal crossings, Congress has supplemented this effort by ensuring federal agencies have the necessary resources they need.

In July, I supported the enactment of $165 billion for border security, enforcement, and detention, including completion of the southern border wall, and the Department of Justice funding bill I supported this week ensures funding for detention facilities through the remainder of this fiscal year.

Together, these issues reflect a consistent principle rooted in the Monroe Doctrine: America must defend its sovereignty, uphold the rule of law, and resist malign influence in our hemisphere.

Strength at the border, accountability abroad, and fair trade at home remain essential to protecting U.S. security and prosperity in the years ahead, and I look forward to continuing my work on these issues.

Fraudsters out there, seeking to steal our money

Editor's note: Opinions expressed here are those of the author and do not necessarily reflect those of The Elgin Review.

As a reporter, you cover all kinds of stories.

Stories about natural disasters, murders, grandmas who collect cookie jars and good samaritans.

But it's the stories about fraud that make you scratch your head the most.

What drives people, usually already prosperous people, to steal from their local sports club, collections for a sick person, or the town treasury? And, of course, there's all those scams on the internet.

ALL THINGS NEBRASKA

State Correspondent Paul Hammel

Often, the stealing is done by someone who appeared trustworthy and honest. But in the end, we conclude, "boy were we fooled" and wonder how it could happen.

That, I gotta think, is what a lot of people concluded about a now-dead Lincoln businessman and his financial advisor.

Aaron Marshbanks came off as a credible businessman, a supporter of charitable causes, and a devout Christian. Jesse Hill, his financial advisor, came off as a successful investment manager and leader in his church, who'd made friends good money and lived at a forested acreage worth more than $1 million.

But over the past three years, we've learned that the pair were on a spree – to cover some horrible investment losses – to defraud a couple dozen banks around Nebraska and Iowa out of more than $40 million in loans.

Some of the banks were so taken by the fast-talking pair that they provided loans of $2 million, more or less, without collateral. Others relied on financial statements provided by Hill that were later deemed to be fake.

Others, though, did require collateral. But some sent them packing, declining loans for them.

The pair roamed the area, asking banks and savings and loans – from Curtis to Wayne, Lincoln and Omaha, and North Platte to Council Bluffs, Iowa – to loan them money. Just recently, we learned that the financial institutions ended up losing more than $37 million due to the duo's deception.

I've seen this show before. David Hunter was a supposedly prosperous owner of a Lincoln title company who was a friend of governors and mayors. That is, until he shot himself as a multi-million check kiting scheme was becoming known.

Ray Perry was a flamboyant and quick-witted Southerner who ran a low-level radioactive waste compact based in Lincoln. Then, it was discovered that he was skimming funds to buy a fleet of luxury cars.

The common thread was that these were all people who seemed totally legitimate and worthy of trust. And, it was assumed, there was plenty of oversight and due diligence to detect any fraud. Until there wasn't.

From the beginning of time, there's been people whose business was to fool us out of our well-earned money.

Most recently, we've read about fraudulent child-care payments made in Minnesota. So far, more than $250 million in fraudulent payments have been found, with more than 90 people charged (the $9 billion estimate being tossed around hasn't been verified yet, and some officials dispute it).

During the pandemic, checks were flying out of the Small Business Administration to keep small businesses running and employees paid. One estimate is that more than $200 billion in aid was distributed to fraudulent actors, those who fabricated businesses or the numbers of employees they allegedly had.

I've heard every excuse as to why people steal from their local PTA, a Boy Scout troop, or the local bank or village – "I was underpaid, I deserve it ... I was just borrowing and intended to pay it back ... I was desperate and had nowhere else to turn ...."

Most often, you hear that a fraudster believed that no one would find out. Until someone did.

I'm not sure how to end this column, or if fraud and cheating will ever end. Human nature has its pimples. Temptation is out there.

But I know this, when people commit fraud, they end up ruining their families, hurting their neighbors, and harming the companies, banks and organizations that they stole from. We gotta be careful..

Paul Hammel has covered the Nebraska state government and the state for decades. Prior to his retirement, he was senior contributor with the Nebraska Examiner.

He was previously with the Omaha World-Herald, Lincoln Journal Star and Omaha Sun.

A native of Ralston, Nebraska, he loves traveling and writing about the state.

The men who signed the Declaration of Independence

Editor's note: This week marks the second installment of a new series tied to our nation's 250th birthday in July 2026.

As time draws near to Celebrate 250 years of Independence, it seems appropriate to review the Declaration of Independence and to explore the background of those who created and signed the most important document in our country's history.

It is written by Caroline Epp of Giltner, Nebraska.

Richard Henry Lee (1732-1794) was born into a family of great influence. Richard went to study in England at an early age.

While there he became fascinated with Ancient History where republicanism had been demonstrated, falling in love with the ideas of civil liberties. At age 19 he returned to the colonies zealously contending for freedom from Great Britain.

At age 20, he formed a local military Corp of which he was the leader. He offered their services to Braddock from England in 1755 to fight against the French and Indians in Ohio but was haughtily turned down. It didn't fare well for Braddock who died in battle.

In 1757, Lee was appointed Justice of the Peace for his county by the royal governor.

About the same time, he was elected to the House of Burgesses of Virginia at age of 25.

It was said Mr. Lee did not get involved with debate at his young age until a bill came forth to "lay so heavy a duty on the importation of slaves, as effectually to stop that disgraceful traffic."

He passionately spoke in favor of this measure, hoping it would deter the abhorred slave trade. Lee also was the first man in Virginia, 1766, to publicly stand against the "Stamp Act" being joined with Patrick Henry, another powerful voice.

In 1768, Mr. Lee wrote a letter to John Dickenson suggesting a system of correspondence between colonies ought to be in place. Eventually the Committee of Correspondence had its start in March 1773 with both Virginia and Massachusetts; the other colonies following suit to co-ordinate efforts for independence.

Mr. Lee was elected to the Continental Congress in 1774. Due to this position and his passion for independence, he traveled tirelessly to unite the southern and northern colonies. June 7, 1776, Richard Henry Lee introduced a bill calling for official independence from Great Britain stating: "...That these united Colonies are, and ought to be, free and independent.

Honoring the legacy of Dr. Martin Luther King

On Monday, January 19, we paused as a nation to remember and honor the life and legacy of one of America's most consequential civil rights leaders. A Baptist minister, Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. was a man of faith who fought for civil rights through nonviolent resistance. He insisted that racial inequality could be confronted not with hatred or violence, but with courage, discipline, and love.

WASHINGTON REPORT

U.S. Senator Deb Fischer

During school, many of us studied his iconic "I Have a Dream" speech, but it is well worth revisiting his message each year. "I still have a dream. It is a dream deeply rooted in the American dream. I have a dream that one day this nation will rise up, live out the true meaning of its creed: 'We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal,'" Dr. King proclaimed on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial.

"We must forever conduct our struggle on the high plane of dignity and discipline. We must not allow our creative protests to degenerate into physical violence," he reminded an audience of over 250,000 people gathered for the March on Washington in 1963.

Our nation began observing Martin Luther King Jr. Day as a federal holiday in 1986 after President Ronald Reagan signed it into law in 1983. This day invites us to reflect on Dr. King's vision of a world where injustice yields to fairness, violence gives way to compassion, and love remains the most enduring force for change. Decades later, the movement he helped lead continues to shape hearts, minds, and policies here at home and around the world.

In Nebraska, we pride ourselves on service, community, and hard work — values that align closely with the life Dr. King lived. Honoring his legacy means placing service above self, choosing community over convenience, and persevering through difficult challenges rather than retreating to easier paths. These choices are how Dr. King's dream remains alive.

My office welcomes hundreds of Nebraskans to Washington, D.C., each year, whether they come to advocate on Capitol Hill or to experience our nation's history firsthand. We are always glad to help arrange a tour of the U.S. Capitol or welcome you to a Nebraska Breakfast in the Dirksen Senate Building. And when you are in Washington, I encourage you to visit the Martin Luther King Jr. Memorial near the Tidal Basin. Standing before it, one is reminded of what's possible when people choose to lead with principle and act with purpose.

How is your faith? Could it use a boost?
Attending church services has so many benefits...spiritual growth, community connections, and - believe it or not - positive health outcomes. Regular church attendance can also give you opportunities for personal development, service, and a deepening your faith. If your faith could use a booster shot, attend a service of your choice.

Divided We Fall
Even the early church suffered disagreements.
That is a most human trait.
Paul, a church founder, called for unity of purpose and agreement.
He called for the focus to be on Jesus.
This week in church, focus on Jesus.

Nebraska Extension hosts organic farm group

Growing nitrogen, peas as a cover crop, weather models, and market prospects were among key topics of the day-long annual meeting of the Nebraska Organic Crop Improvement Association (OCIA) near Ithaca, NE Saturday, January 10, 2026. The meeting was hosted by Nebraska Extension at the Eastern Nebraska Research, Extension, and Education Center. Katja Koehler-Cole, University of Nebraska-Lincoln (UNL) Statewide Soil Health Extension Educator, welcomed 35 participants and shared evidence-based recommendations on managing nitrogen with green manures in organic rotations.

Philip Schuchardt, who farms near Elgin, reviewed site-specific, real-time weather models beneficial to production decisions. Nicolas Cafaro La Menza, University of Nebraska-Lincoln assistant professor of agronomy and horticulture, reviewed advantages of spring and winter peas for weed suppression. Representatives from Scoular Grain, Fremont, outlined expectations for 2026 organic livestock and grain sales.

In addition to educational opportunities, the day included the annual business meeting. Amongst other action, Board members reported on the organic farming scholarship fund and involvement with the USDA Transition to Organic Partnership Program (TOPP). dent States, that they are absolved from all allegiance to the British crown, and that all political connection between America and State of Great Britain is, and ought to be, totally dissolved..."

His bill was adopted on July 2, 1776.

Five men concurrently worked on a document called the Declaration of Independence, ratified July 4, 1776, thus the beginning of our nation! Richard Henry Lee was known to say that the Declaration was "copied from Locke's Treatise on Government." Locke drew heavily from the Bible for all his political ideas.

In Locke's first treatise on government, he used or referred to the Bible 1,349 times! (John Locke: Deist or Theologian?, Wallbuilders, 2025) A proclamation for a day of Thanksgiving, written by Richard Henry Lee, was set for December 18, 1777.

A portion stated: "...To inspire our Commanders, both by Land and Sea, and all under them, with that Wisdom and Fortitude which may render them fit Instruments, under the Providence of Almighty GOD, to secure for these United States, the greatest of all human Blessings, INDEPENDENCE and PEACE: That it may please Him, to prosper the Trade and Manufactures of the People, and the Labor of the Husbandman, that our Land may yield its Increase: To take Schools and Seminaries of Education, so necessary for cultivating the Principles of true Liberty, Virtue and Piety, under His nurturing Hand..."

As an original U.S. Senator under the Constitution of the United States in 1789, he helped frame the Bill of Rights. Mr. Lee dedicated his whole life to free this nation which in turn freed humankind as prescribed by the Bible.

No other nation on earth has prospered or led to personal freedom as the United States of America.

want to watch a movie or a television show that I feel isn't age appropriate. Whatever the reason (which I don't have to give any justification), it's because we want to protect them, keep them healthy, etc.

If my kids had it their way, they would be up all night playing video games and eating cake for breakfast. They would have zero chores, unlimited snacks, and probably watch R-rated movies.

Oftentimes, parents want their kids to like them or seem cool. Unfortunately, it has the opposite effect. Kids don't respect parents that give them everything they want. Kids actually crave discipline and the Bible even tells us that it's important for them to be disciplined. It's my personal belief that is why we see a plethora of self-entitled little hellions running around. These kids were never denied their requests and have now assumed they are owed something and are caught off guard when they don't get what they want.

It's time we take back control. It's time that parents go against the new norm of the culture and start parenting again. This may be unpopular and I might sound crazy, but being the "bad guy" is sometimes the role we must assume. We aren't their friends (maybe we can be when they're 30), we're their parents.

The Nebraska chapter is a membership organization, now numbering sixty-four organic farmers, focused on environmentally sound stewardship, mentorship, sharing of best practices, and the promotion of certified organic production. For more information, contact Kim Mosel, OCIA Nebraska Program Administrator, 402-620-2701, ociane1@yahoo.com, follow on Facebook, or see www.nebraskaoia.org.

On the web site, see informational videos about organic production practices funded by USDA TOPP.

Governor's budget retains funding for Weigand marina
DeKay says Trump creating new opportunities for Nebraska

On Thursday, January 15, Governor Pillen presented his State of the State Address to the Legislature. The Governor emphasized that his administration and the Unicameral should continue to work together to grow Nebraska and keep "The Good Life" open for business. He reported that the current presidential administration in Washington has created countless new opportunities for Nebraska. The Governor also touched on his priorities for this year and endorsed several legislative proposals: reforming tort litigation, creating new economic development incentives, lowering property taxes, ending diversity, equity, and inclusion spending in Nebraska's higher ed system, implementing agriculture data privacy protections, and stopping biological males from intruding into women's bathrooms.

The Governor also submitted his recommended adjustments to the 2025-2027 biennial state budget to the Legislature. His recommendations include $277.9 million in transfers and adjustments from various cash and trust funds. These cash and trust funds were identified as having excess money. Additionally, the Governor's budget proposal includes a series of cuts to various state agencies and programs. For example, the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services would see its 2026-2027 general fund reduced by $152.4 million. The Governor's proposed budget, if left untouched, would reduce state spending by 1.1 percent and leave the state with a little over $125 million above the minimum reserve at the end of the two-year budget cycle.

In terms of impact to Northeast Nebraska, I am pleased that the Governor's budget proposal maintains funding for the improvements proposed at the Weigand Marina at Lewis and Clark Lake, which are expected to begin construction later this spring. This project was a recommendation of the Statewide Tourism and Recreation Water Access and Resource Sustainability (STAR WARS) Committee of the Legislature.

I am also pleased to see both additional funds be allocated for property tax relief and the inclusion of appropriations language banning the use of state funds on diversity, equity, and inclusion programs in this year's proposed budget.

Additionally, the Legislature started floor debate this week. Several bills introduced last year were debated and advanced to Select File. LB60 would eliminate the restriction on selling a lottery ticket through a vending or dispensing device. LB212 would establish a maximum tax cap of fifty cents per unit on cigars, cheroots, and stogies beginning January 1, 2027.

LB207 would require commercial electric vehicles weighing more than seven thousand five hundred pounds to pay a higher registration fee to the Department of Motor Vehicles since electric vehicles do not pay gas tax. The Legislature will continue to debate bills in the order they were advanced out of committee until senator and committee priority bills begin to reach the floor for debate.

I invite you to let me know your thoughts or concerns. My Capitol office telephone number is (402) 471-2801 while my email is bdekay@leg.ne.gov. My mailing address is: Senator Barry DeKay, District #40, P.O. Box 94604, State Capitol, Lincoln, NE 68509.

If your local newspaper didn't publish public notices and write stories about past and upcoming public meetings, you would be left guessing at what your government entities are doing. New service rates, purchases and sellings of property, ordinances and so much more.

Governments are larger, more pervasive and way, way more powerful now than in any time in America's history.

Public notices are MANDATORY announcements of what these governmental bodies plan to do or what they have already set into motion. Therefore, they aren't very popular with governmental officials.

Did you know?

Millions of retirees are in jeopardy of outliving their retirement savings.

A recent report from the senior care experts at Seniorly indicated that millions of retirees are in jeopardy of outliving their retirement savings. The Seniorly report tabulated projected retirement income and expenses starting at age 65, and found that the average American retiree can expect roughly $762,000 in income generated from government-sponsored plans like Social Security, savings and investments. But the expected living expenses of such individuals was determined to be $877,000, meaning the average retiree may have a shortfall of $115,000. Retirement savings shortfalls also are a cause for concern in Canada, where 59 percent of Canadians indicated they fear they will outlive their savings in a 2025 CPP Investments Retirement Survey. Projections like those from Seniorly and the fears expressed by Canadians concerned by a potential shortfall of retirement savings underscore the need to prioritize saving for life after working, which can have short-term benefits as well. In fact, 49 percent of Canadians who expected to utilize the Canada Pension Plan reported lower levels of stress as a result of their commitment to retirement planning.

Winter care critical for bull performance

IT'S ALL ABOUT BEEF

Beef Systems
Asst. Ext. Educator
Ben Beckman

While breeding season may be a ways off, making sure our bulls are cared for throughout the winter and ready to go when it is time to turn out is critical. A sound and fertile bull can mean the difference between success or failure of next year's calf crop. While AI is a valuable tool to use in breeding, across the U.S. 87% of operations still utilize bulls in some capacity.

Winter care for bulls can be broken down into two categories, body condition and fertility. Let's look at body condition first. Bull condition going into breeding season is a major factor in the success of a bull's breeding capacity. In general, a 1:20 ratio of bull to cows is a good starting point, but depending on pasture size, number of herds, and other factors, that number can vary significantly. However, even with a 1:20 ratio maintained, bull vigor and dominance will also play a role in breeding success. One study noted animals servicing anywhere from 4 to 80 females during the breeding season.

The energy required to meet the demands of breeding is substantial, and bulls can be expected to lose anywhere from 100 to 400 lbs. during the course of the breeding season. Getting animals back into condition for next year is one of the primary focuses we should have. Typically we want animals back to a body condition score 6 before turn out next year.

To do this, take a body condition score now if you haven't already done so and develop a plan for feeding. Remember that young animals may not yet be fully grown so will need additional energy and protein to continue growth and build condition. For this reason, depending on the number of bulls in a herd, separating mature and younger animals into separate herds can make meeting feed requirements for each group easier.

Meeting mineral requirements is also important. Research has shown that in particular selenium and zinc are key in maintaining fertility health and sperm production. Iodine in mineral can help with hoof issues and ensure sound feet going into the breeding season.

AI generated image

The second factor to consider with bulls during the winter is fertility. Major impacts on fertility in the winter months are cold and frostbite on the scrotum. Even minor injury can have some impact on fertility, but we really want to protect against major damage that will eventually result in blisters and scabbing. At this point, sperm production will be impacted. Spermatogenesis takes up to 61 days, so damage can have long term impact. Keep an eye out for possible damage when checking bulls and evaluate injured bulls after 45-60 days with a breeding soundness exam. It's better to know early that a bull won't be ready than scrambling for a replacement option last minute.

To keep cold damage to a minimum, do your best to protect animals from the wind and cold. Provide plenty of space for animals to find shelter and windbreaks to cut down on wind-chill impacts. A layer of bedding on the ground helps insulate animals from the cold and protect against freezing.

While bulls may not be our first focus this time of year, don't forget to give their care some thought. Evaluate animal condition and have a plan to get body condition scores back to 6 before next year's breeding season. Providing shelter from the cold with windbreaks and bedding will help safeguard fertility and prevent any unwanted surprises later on.

WOLFPACK

Wolfpack Sports

When you're the fastest player on the court, breakaway baskets are common. Braelyn Martinsen had plenty of those Tuesday night as the Wolfpack defeated Fullerton 61 to 18.

EPPJ knocks out Warriors 61 to 18

ELGIN — On a night when the Wolfpack could have crushed their opponent, they instead showed compassion. Wolfpack starters played sparingly after the first quarter as the EPPJ girls defeated Fullerton 61 to 18.

For one quarter, the Wolfpack showed their fans just how dominant they can be when everything is clicking on the court.

EPPJ scored the first 22 points in the game as Braelyn Martinsen & Co. repeatedly found the basket on offense. Martinsen had 12 points in the run. And, perhaps more telling for just how dominant EPPJ was, five field goals came off steals.

Later in the quarter, Jael Lammers had back to back baskets before Gemma Miller closed out the quarter with a bucket.

From there on, Coach Randy Eisenhower's team 'took the foot over the gas' as they had just 13 points to close out the first half, getting points from reserves Gentry Zwingman and Kierstyn Eisenhower as well as from the starters. The lead grew, in part, because Fullerton was held scoreless in the quarter.

In the second half, EPPJ out-scored Fullerton 18 to 14 to close out the victory. At one point in the second half, EPPJ led Fullerton by 46 points.

The Warriors had 39 turnovers in the game compared to just eight for EPPJ, one factor in the lopsided score. Another key statistic was steals - EPPJ had 28, Fullerton had just two.

Martinsen led all scorers with 14 points, one more than teammate Mady Kurpgeweit with 13. The duo tied for the team-high in assists with four apiece. Kurpgeweit led in rebounds with seven.

Fullerton boys can't keep pace with Wolfpack scoring machine

ELGIN — The Fullerton Warriors came into the game with just two losses and a belief they could defeat EPPJ. Two hours after the opening tipoff, the Warriors left the arena with a 53 to 32 loss.

In a game in which they never trailed, the Wolfpack made a statement - they are good at both ends of the court.

Coach Matt Euse said he told the team this was a 'big' game. One year ago, the Warriors had upset the Wolfpack. This year, the Wolfpack were determined that wasn't going to happen.

Fullerton rallied from a deficit in the first quarter, cutting EPPJ's lead to just four points near the end of the quarter. Wolfpack senior Karson Kallhoff then put a charge into Wolfpack fans by making a trey at the buzzer to boost the lead to 16 to 9.

Then, getting the ball to start the second quarter, Michael Selt-ing hit a two-pointer and the lead was suddenly nine points, a margin they would maintain at halftime when the score was 28 to 19. "Offensively, I thought we moved the ball around pretty well," Euse said.

Henn scored inside early and often in the game, finishing with 12 points on six of eight shooting.

"When they began to make an emphasis on stopping Henn down low, the beauty of our team is we've got shooters all around, so they (opponents) have got to kind of pick and choose."

EPPJ began the second half strong as senior Jarek Erickson scored inside, then outside the three-point arc to make the score 35 to 21.

The Wolfpack then put the game away with two treys from Kallhoff, one from Erickson to go along with a three-point play which made the score 47 to 26. Max Henn and Justice Blecher closed out the game with baskets for a 21-point margin of victory. Kallhoff was hot from behind the arc, making five of five attempts. Erickson led all scorers with 16 points and pulled down a team-high 10 rebounds, Henn had nine.

Martinsen, Kurpgeweit post double-doubles at Stuart

STUART — On a Friday night when the wind was howling and the snow was blowing across the road, the inside of Stuart High School's gymnasium was 'hot' for Elgin Public-Pope John.

The Wolfpack girls built a 33 to 16 lead at halftime and cruised to a 59 to 34 victory over the Lady Broncos.

The Wolfpack's two outstanding juniors (Braelyn Martinsen and Mady Kurpgeweit) did not disappoint against Stuart. Each recorded a 'double-double' to help lead the Wolfpack to their 12th victory against just two losses.

Martinsen scored 19 points and pull down 11 rebounds. Kurpgeweit led all scorers with a game-high 21 points to go along with 10 rebounds.

The Wolfpack's defensive pressure limited Stuart to single-digit scoring in all four quarters. Next up for EPPJ will be a Tuesday night game at home against O'Neill (too late for press time).

EPPJ claims three medals at Plainview

PLAINVIEW — In one of the biggest meets of the season, EPPJ's girls wrestling team more than held their own Saturday. Competing at the Plainview Invite, Libby Evans won gold, Anna Dworak placed fourth and Jayda Chessmore finished sixth in their weight classes. For Evans, her day was full of pins. She pinned all four of her opponents to claim gold.

Dworak recorded one of the fastest pins of all wrestlers, taking out Jalee Haggerty (StP) in 28 seconds.

Pack pulls away in fourth quarter to defeat Stuart 36 to 29

STUART — Give the Stuart Broncos credit, they don't give up.

For three quarters Friday night they hung tough with the undefeated Wolfpack. They trailed by just two points, 29 to 27, entering the fourth quarter. Then, thanks to some big plays, some stingy defense and a sudden cold shooting spell, Elgin Public-Pope John pulled away to win 36 to 29.

Over the final eight minutes, EPPJ outscored the Broncos nine to two to claim the victory. Senior Karson Kallhoff led the Wolfpack with 14 points, teammate Max Henn added 12.

But the big story may have been rebounds. Senior Jarrek Erickson pulled down 20 rebounds, a season high for the Wolfpack.

Rebounds were key in the game as EPPJ grabbed 29 to just 20 for the Broncos.

Whistling, barking, goat boy/fan brings on trauma of a different kind

MADISON — Let’s call it intellectual trauma. It’s taken days to get over the intellectual trauma I and some other fans endured at the holiday tournament. Monday-Tuesday tournaments are extremely difficult to cover as they interfere with the production of that week’s newspaper. This year, to be there for the Wolfpack’s championship games, it meant getting everything done except the championship photos before heading to Madison at noon. We get to the gym and the boys consolation game is just starting between Madison and Lyons-Decatur NE. We find seats about five rows up near midcourt and moments later the trauma begins.

One of the fans watching the game is an adult male with a girlfriend and some youngsters seated around him. First come the whistles. In between words he whistles the whole time.

Then, comes the dog barking. I can't recognize the breed of animal, but I do know the sound. Years ago we lived next to a family who had a dog but paid it little attention. The dog barked all the time. I think the fan uses the dog bark when he gets tired of whistling.

Wolfpack fans seated nearby hear the noise and become annoyed. I'm surprised the referees ignore the fan, they hear it but do nothing as they run up and down the court.

Little did we know there was more in this fan's arsenal. In the second half, Jim Breuer's goat sounds begin to mix in with the barking and whistling.

He did a pretty good version of 'goat boy'. It's laughable at first, but a little goat goes a long ways.

The fan still has one more trick up his sleeve (or below). When the opposing team shoots a free throw, he knocks on the bleacher with a water bottle and stomps with his feet. The knocks are loud! I should have known better when I noticed no other of his team's fans were sitting near him. After the bleacher banging, I wanted to say 'nice knockers' in a way Gene Wilder did in the movie "Young Frankenstein" but it wasn't really nice what was going on.

I love fans who get 'involved' with their son or daughter's ball game. Cheering their successes or supporting them when the shots don't fall, that should be part of the game. But, sometimes one can cross the line.

Years ago when I was attending Seward High School, our arch rival was York. They were the Ducks and we were the River Rats. They didn't like us, we didn't like them and neither side cared. I was a junior that year and a senior at our school decided to take it to the next level.

The scene was York Auditorium, a grand building constructed during the great depression with bleachers on the floor and a balcony of seats above them. The senior, we'll call Fred, put a live duck in a box and covered it with pop corn. The person taking tickets let him in, no questions asked. The boys sat in the balcony behind the pep club. We all sat around Fred and, just before the start of the game, the live duck was let out of the box, flew over the pep club and landed on the court where the York players were warming up. Seward high students thought it was funny. The York kids didn't and, after they won the game, they egged the Seward school bus as it left town.

SPINNING TALES

Publisher
Dennis Morgan

Both sides crossed the line of decorum that night. Some fans found it funny, others didn't, but it didn't interfere with anyone watching the game.

Behavior exhibited by the adult fan at the holiday tournament, shouldn't be exhibited by any parent or adult fan. More to the point, I felt sorry for the children who think this is the way one should act at a public sporting event.

Just because you paid your $5 for admission, that doesn't give you the God-given right to make fans sitting near you miserable with your antics.

Ethan Hansen, shown here in action earlier this month at Summerland, placed second in the 138-pound weight class at Dunning.

Hansen, teammates shine Saturday at Sandhills Invite DUNNING — On the second day of their western wrestling trip, EPPJ competed Saturday at the Sandhills Invite.

The Wolfpack competed against many wrestlers they won't see again this year.

Ethan Hansen wrestled twice, winning one match with a pin, to place second at 138 pounds.

Teammate John Zwingman won his first and last match by pin to place fourth at 165 pounds.

Grady Drueke dropped his first match, then won the next four to place third at 157 pounds.

Individual results were:

165 pounds — John Zwingman (EPPJ) pinned Ashton Lambert (SAV) in 3:06; Zwingman was pinned by Breckyn Collins (NPSP) in 2:12; Zwingman lost 20 to 3 TF to Cooper Walker (MUL); Zwingman was pinned by Oran Grint (TW) in 1:04; Zwingman pinned Trace
