Big snowflakes blanketed Elgin last week

School board to hire two new teachers

Several weeks ago, School District #18 received a resignation letter from elementary instructor Crystal Borer. It appears that they may have found her replacement.

The school board will meet on Wednesday night, March 15 (tonight) to formally accept the resignation of Mrs. Borer who is currently teaching fifth grade. Her resignation would coincide with the end of the 2022/2023 school vear

On the agenda for that night's meeting, the board is expected to approve teaching contracts for two new teachers - Melissa Buller (of Neligh) and Tabetha Jurgens-Frank (Summerland).

Buller will fill Borer's position while Jurgens-Frank will assume the position previously held by Sue Vanis who announced her retirement last month.

On another matter involving teachers, the board is expected to approve offering teacher contracts for the upcoming school year.

Aside from personnel matters, the school board will approve a school calendar for the 2023/2024 school year. At last month's meeting, Superintendent Mike Brockhaus proposed a tentative calendar which would have the upcoming school year start one week later than previousl years. The only other item on the action agenda is to approve upcoming technology purchases. Also, the board will discuss Hudl cameras.

The regular meeting is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. There will be a public hearing for the Americanism committee which will begin at 7 p.m. Wednesday night's meeting will be held in the distance learning room.

Deacon John Starman finds trust to be abundant here

Editor's Note: This continues a series of monthly articles celebrating pride in our town and its surroundings shown through the experience of residents and organizations.

By Jane Schuchardt

Special to the Elgin Review When it comes to Elgin businessman John Starman, it's all about seed.

There are stacks and stacks of corn, soybean, and alfalfa seed bags and bins awaiting spring planting in his warehouse tucked away just west of Beckman Lumber. As a Catholic deacon, he also plants the seed of faith and, as a husband, dad, and grandfather, it's obvious that sowing seeds of family love is a priority.

An Elgin native and 1980 graduate of Pope John Catholic High School, his welcoming office is well appointed with his priorities. A family photo features his he and his wife of 32 years, Kelly, one daughter and three sons. They have four grands, two of each gender, and another two expected come June.

Then one notices a wall of awards from Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., a U.S-based agriculture seed company for which Starman is a dealer. With the exception of 2010, the plaques laud Starman in 2008 through 2022 for sales growth and dollar volume sold.

sity of Notre Dame Satellite Theological Education Program in 2017.

Deacon Starman, ordained a decade ago, explained he was called in the late 1990s and just wasn't ready. Then there were signs, such as "an African American woman (at a church conference) asking me if I was a pastor," he said. "When I asked why, she said 'because you have so much peace about you'."

Evidently, that peace flows into his work life. "Sometimes conversations start up as business and do not end up that way," Starman said as leaned back in his desk chair thinking of his client base of 100-plus growers in southern Antelope and eastern Wheeler counties. A 1984 graduate of Kearney State College, now University of Nebraska at Kearney, Starman holds a Bachelor of

Seeds as far as the eye can see are ready for spring planting at John Starman's business in Elgin. E-R photo/JSchuchardt

I'd be the guy in my parents' basement eating mac and cheese. She's my one and only!

As deacon, Starman is anchored out of St. John the Baptist Catholic Church in Petersburg and assigned to six area parishes. He studied four years for this lifelong commitment, the first year being joined by Kelly, a requirement when married, and engaged in a five-day silent retreat before ordination learning "what He wanted me to do," he said prayerfully.

A melanoma survivor, a rare form near his left eye, Starman recounted several incidents some might call a 'God moment'. Knowing he had to get up for a medical appointment, he did the unusual -- set the alarm on his cell phone and put it bedside. At 11:00 pm the phone rang with a family was in need. "Why tonight would I take the cell phone in my bedroom?" he questioned. "I don't believe in coincidences."

At 60, he is beginning to transition the business to his son Peter, who also lives with his family in Petersburg. "I can see a light at the end of the tunnel,"

Before starting up the Elgin business in 1996, Starman lived in Albion and worked as an agronomist and office manager for Coash, Inc., a fertilizer and chemical retailer bought out by Helena, Inc. Kelly and he moved to Petersburg when they married in 1990 and have lived there ever since.

About starting up Starman Seed Service, Inc., "my wife may have looked at me cross-eyed a bit though she trusted I knew what I was doing." To put this comment into perspective, at the time the couple had three young children and he was moving from a salaried job with benefits to a commission-based arrangement with no health insurance. The Elgin Community Center hosted a "Tablescape Tea Party" on Sunday, March 12. The event, which began at 2 p.m., was a fundraiser for needed facility improvements. was a success and thoroughly enjoyed by those who attended.

My mom, Lois Schrunk, was a table hostess and invited six guests to sit at her table. Those guests were Gwen Peters, Bev Becker, Pam Meis, Shirley Meis, Ramona Thieman and myself. The table was set with Lois's wedding dishes which were Sears-Roebuck-Harmon House Porcelain China. Table decorations included cherished items from Ellis and Lois's wedding October 11, 1953, nearly 70 years ago. This included a wedding announcement, wedding photo, wedding cake topper and wax roses made by Lois's sister Bonnie as wedding cake decorations.

Every table was beautiful and unique. Table hostesses were given the opportunity to stand up and give a description of their place setting, how or where they obtained them and why they meant so much to them. This added a very personal touch to the afternoon.

Guest speaker Shirley Meis told the story of her daughter's February 18 wedding in 1984 and as luck would have it a 22 inch snow that same weekend. The wedding did happen with much stress, adventure and a special miracle, and yes her daughter is still married. If you see Shirley, maybe she will retell the story. A delicious luncheon of chicken salad, broccoli salad, desserts was enjoyed by all those attending. Janna Schrunk, manager of the Community Center, did an excellent job putting on this event with the help of many. Janna has worked hard to make the 'Center' a welcoming place for the community.

Ever notice how a trip to Elgin's fabulous Dean's Market can be a social event? Hadn't seen co-owner Kim in a while, and she always graciously takes time to catch up. So here's a smalltown fun story for you with a happy result.

While talking, Kim is urgently interrupted by an employee holding a grocery basket with a man's billfold inside. Kim takes it out of the basket and we both have a look to identify the owner. There it was - the driver's license. Called the guy, who happens to be a dear friend, and offered to drop it off on the way home

Hubby Rick had already gone out to the truck with our groceries. Kim reminded me about the maraschino cherries needed to decorate a traditional King cake for a Mardi Gras gathering

Nary a cent on me. So Kim says, "Why don't you borrow a couple of bucks from the billfold?" I did. Returned the billfold. Paid him back. All is well.

Now that's what I'm talking about! Just love this smalltown living.

A friend had a stroke and can't talk much right now. Praying for a full recovery. Think about not being able to talk. Many of us use the verbal word from daybreak to sundown and more. There's girl talk, guy talk, shop talk, small talk, heart-to-heart talk, and even talking to oneself.

SAY WHAT?

This Elgin farmhouse we live in was built in 1924, and the restored barn in 1903. Oh, if these walls could talk! Maybe one comment would be 'all talk, no cattle' meaning to have no action behind your words. If you can't walk the walk, definitely don't talk the talk. Some people are good at smoothtalking, fast-talking, double-talking, or talking out of both sides of their mouth. Beware.

Others, often the talk of the town (in a negative way), need a good talking to. Honestly, though, it would be like talking to a brick wall with compassion and understanding. The employee knows you have the power to hire and fire.

Dirty talk is just not appropriate anytime, anywhere, especially as table talk. Neither is talking down to someone. Every human has worth. And talking behind one's back just isn't right. Talking back, often defiantly as you might get from a teenager pushing back against adult control, never was acceptable in my growing up years.

If you've got a beef, how about talking it over? Let's talk turkey is another way of saying this; just get down to the meat of the matter. Even so, sometimes the other puts the palm up to your face and says 'talk to the hand' meaning they're not willing to listen. You can talk until you're blue in the face with no result.

Every so often, one needs a pep talk to feel better. Or a little sweet talk from a lover can brighten any day. Though, when someone talks over your head, it's time to ask them to speak so you can understand.

Amazingly, this is my 89th column. So now we're talking. How I appreciate The Elgin Review for printing my ramblings. Talk with you again in a couple weeks

Voter ID proposals are anything but cut and dried

Three proposals to cover the solution looking for a problem -- voter ID -- have proven to be about as confusing as the proponent's explanation as to why the idea was necessary. After a lot of listening and a bunch of head scratching, I'm still not convinced

The only thing I know for sure, in Sen. Steve Erdman's world there would be no mail-in ballots. Tell that to the 11 Nebraska counties that hold mail-only elections right now. Better yet, convince my 85-year -old neighbors that it's a good idea.

Voters approved an initiative petition in November and it was dumped on the Legislature's doorstep to implement. There was a lot of grousing before the election that the measure didn't give a clue about implementation. Well, that's the nature of the initiative petition. It's a big trust me, so here we are measures, two from Republican farmer Erdman and one from Gretna Democrat Jen Day, were heard for more than seven hours by the Legislature's Government, Military and Veteran's Affairs committee. Yes, friends, they are all unnecessary. In a nutshell, Erdman's LB228 would eliminate voting by mail except for military personnel and those living in nursing homes and assisted living facilities

It would also establish primary and general election days as statewide holidays; stipulate that all ballots be counted at the precinct level on election day; and limit early voting to in-person at either a county election or county clerk's office.

Erdman reasons that mail-in voting is expensive and doesn't necessarily increase voter turnout. Requiring votes to be cast and counted at the precinct level on election day would ensure that ballots are secure and not in danger of being "messed with," he said. His LB230 would define qualifying photographic identification for voting purposes. The bill also would limit the option of early voting to those who are "handicapped" or members of the armed forces or Nebraska Nation al Guard. It would also make it a criminal offense for an election official to fail to require a voter to show photo ID and would require an agent delivering a ballot to include a color photocopy of the registered voter's qualifying photo ID. A qualifying ID would be one of the following: driver's license or state issued ID, Nebraska voter ID, U.S. passport or tribal ID issued by a recognized Indian tribe. A qualifying photo ID could not be more than 60 days past its expiration date.

REPOR[†]

This weekend, I had the opportunity to visit our southern border and see firsthand the chaos occurring there. Our trip to the Rio Grande Valley reaffirmed that what is going on at our border is nothing short of a national security crisis. The Biden administration's reckless disregard for border security has turned every state — including Nebraska — into a border state.

U.S. Senator Deb Fischer

My Republican colleagues and I visited the border because we want to fix this crisis. We spoke with many Border Patrol agents throughout the weekend, who told us about the outrageous numbers of migrants they encounter each day - numbers that are only growing. Total encounters this fiscal year have already shot up to 770,175. Monthly encounters reached an all-time high in December: 251,487 in just one month. Agents are doing admirable work to protect migrants, defend our national security, and stop criminals and traffickers in their tracks — but it's all with little support from this presidential administration.

As a bonus, an American flag symbol would be

We toured the Ursula Central Processing Center, a facility where illegal migrants are taken to be processed and temporarily housed prior to their release. Many of these people are forced to interact with "coyotes" and the cartels on their journeys to the border — interactions often linked to sex trafficking and other horror stories.

My colleagues and I joined the National Border Patrol Council (NBPC) for a night time patrol of illegal activity hot spots across the Rio Grande Valley (RGV). We stopped at the McAllen pump house, a location with direct access to the Rio Grande River through the Jaime Zapata Memorial Boat Ramp, and viewed a frequently used illegal crossing area on the river. We also joined a patrol of Anzalduas Park, an area that's seen a recent spike in illegal crossings.

We traveled down the Rio Grande in boats to learn about the RGV Border Patrol Sector's work ensuring safety and security on the river, and later and the Nebraska Chamber of Commerce and Industry, said the issue is better handled through collective bargaining. The railroads also cited improvements to safety with the introduction of technologies such as positive train control, which are systems designed to automatically stop a train before certain accidents related to human error occur.

Senators and committees are continuing to designate priority legislation. The Government, Military, and Veterans Affairs Committee prioritized LB 535 which would provide a framework for voter ID. Senator von Gillern prioritized LB 805 which would promote character development in the state educational system by providing certain youth organizations, such as the Boy Scouts of America, access to public schools. Senator Hughes prioritized LB 584 which would impose a tax on e-cigarettes and vaping devices in an effort to reduce usage; our fiscal office estimates $1.3 to 1.5 million in tax revenue would come into the state from this tax. Meanwhile, Senator Blood introduced LR 1CA which would create a constitutional amendment to prohibit unfunded mandates after 2024 on any political subdivision within the state unless that subdivision is fully reimbursed by the state for the increased level of service or a new program. The final day for senators and committees to prioritize bills is Tuesday, March 14.

joined the Horse Patrol Unit to travel through the brush on the U.S. side of the river. The zone we patrolled is considered one of the busiest locations for human and drug trafficking in the whole RGV, and we saw trails used regularly to smuggle drugs and people into our country.

We also toured a recently raided stash house in the city of Hidalgo. The scene was unsettling. I was especially troubled because this type of criminal activity is preventable — but Biden's refusal to implement commonsense rules means that trafficking occurs unabated at our border.

During a roundtable conversation the same day, we spoke with the NBPC, the Texas Department of Public Safety, and several local landowners to hear about the challenges they face daily due to the policy chaos Biden's caused at the border. I was disturbed by what I heard about border security difficulties. drug trafficking, migrant smuggling and deaths, and harm to private property.

My time at our southern border reinforced the concerns I had about the Biden administration's failed border policies. Until the president and border czar Vice President Harris start actually enforcing our immigration laws, this situation will not improve.

It's also critical that we in Congress demand practical solutions to the inhumane activity overrunning our southern border.

This Congress, I introduced a resolution with Sen. Katie Britt (R-Ala.) acknowledging the crisis at the southern border, as well as the Keep Our Communities Safe Act, which would close the "catch-and-release" loophole allowing illegal immigrants to escape into our country. Additionally, I helped introduce Sarah's Law, sponsored by Sen. Joni Ernst (R-Iowa), to require mandatory detention of illegal immigrants charged with violent crimes and better protect the public. I'll continue urging my colleagues to join these bills and the president to sign them into law.

Maintaining our national security should not be a partisan goal — it should just be an American one. I'll fight for border security and safety as long as I continue serving in the U.S. Senate.

Wolfpack wrestlers made great progress in 2022/23 season

More often than not, when Carter Beckman stepped on the mat, a pin was imminent. In his 37 victories, he recorded 26 pins. File photo

ELGIN - Look'in good! Those two words could easily be used to describe the 2022-23 season for the Wolfpack wrestling team.

Nine boys and one girl competed this season, beginning in early Decembe and concluding in February in Omaha.

Wrestling fans were treated to watch a state medalist (Carter Beckman) put together a fantastic season, one by which future EPPJ wrestlers will be challenged to better.

The senior, a three-time state qualifier, put together a 37-4 record.

Of the 34 victories, 26 came by pin, a stellar campaign. Beckman's quickness on the mat made opponents realize early on that any mistake on their part meant the match would be over quickly.

Beckman was one of three wrestlers to compile winning records.

The other two were junior Samuel Hemenway and freshman Landyn Veik. Hemenway made his first trip to state and came within one victory of earning a Teacher shortage remains problem in rural Nebraska

By Brian Beach

Nebraska News Service Each fall, Jack Moles travels throughout Nebraska to meet with school superintendents and school board members as part of his role as executive director of the Nebraska Rural Community Schools Association.

This year, he asked meeting attendees how many were unable to fill a teaching position. Several hands would usually go up. Then, he asked how many were unable to fill a position with a person certified or endorsed in the area they were teaching.

A lot more hands would go up.

"Usually over half," Moles said.

The teacher shortage is real in rural Nebraska, and many administrators are beginning to feel the effects.

According to the Nebraska Department of Education 2022-2023 Teacher Vacancy Survey report summary, more than 208 positions were left entirely vacant at the beginning of the 2022-2023 school year, while over 768 positions were unfilled with fully qualified personnel.

The previous year, only 68 positions were left vacant, and 482 positions were unfilled with qualified personnel, though the survey response rate was also 18% lower in 2021.

The Teacher Vacancy Survey data only accounts for teachers in classrooms, but school districts are having trouble hiring other employees as well.

"It's even compounded more when you look at how many people couldn't provide for school bus drivers, for example, paraprofessionals, lunchroom people," Moles said. "Those people are really hard to find right now, in all schools, but especially in rural schools."

Education Service Unit #13 administrator Laura Barrett said that the retirement of older teachers is also contributing to the teacher shortage in the Nebraska panhandle.

Several members of the Nebraska Legislature have taken notice of the issue and introduced legislation offering a wide range of solutions to the teacher shortage this session. Moles, who represents 88,000 students and 219 member schools through his role to our schools' State Speech Competition qualifiers and to each member and the teams competing in Kearney

as executive director of the Nebraska Rural Community Schools Association, identified eight bills aimed at alleviating the teacher shortage that he would support.

These bills include Sen. Lynn Walz's LB519, which would eliminate teacher certification fees, provide one-time retention bonuses and create a loan forgiveness program with extra benefits for teachers in rural or low-income districts.

Moles also supports Sen. Lou Ann Linehan's LB385, which would provide recruitment and retention grants of up to $5,000; Sen. Carol Blood's LB413, which would call for Nebraska to enter into an interstate teacher mobility compact; and LB724 from Sen. Tony Vargas, which would eliminate the Praxis test as a requirement for Nebraska teachers.

Barrett did not want to give her support to any specific bill, but she is optimistic about the direction of the education bills in this year's legislative session.

"There are a lot of really great ideas," Barrett said. "There's merit to most of them, so I would love to see the Legislature look at how we take the best of the different ideas and put it together."

continue to be the BEST form of public notice for the citizens of this great state.

A reputable paper ensures that legal notices are printed for public view. Nebraska newspapers have taken an extra step and created a public notice online portal. It is designed for viewers to search for public notices throughout Nebraska in specific papers and/or by a keyword.

It isn't a substitute for the legal publishing of public notices but it is a bonus for both the entity publishing the notices and you, our readers.

All Elgin Review public notices can also be found on this portal.

NEBRASKA PUBLIC NOTICES

All states require that taxpayers and citizens be legally notified through public notices in newspapers of the activities of their government entities and courts. In Nebraska, that includes information pertaining to notice of meetings, proceedings or minutes of meetings, elections, annexations, budgets, property taxes and hearings, delinquent payments, hearings, ordinances, foreclosures and many other vital official matters of government entities; for courts, examples of required public notices include filings of estates, law suits, dissolutions, custody, assumed names, foreclosures, and many others.

Tales -

stand at midcourt before the start of the game. Then, after the final buzzer, run off the court to a small room where they change their clothes and head home.

When I was in high school, two referees called the games. Then, it was decided because of all the action on the court and the difficulty in seeing everything that was happening, a third official was added to the crew to improve officiating.

Maybe the time has come to utilize technology (i.e. instant replay). I agree, what a headache that would be. How many times could a coach ask for an instant replay, how would the fans react to the game being delayed by five minutes or more while they look for the defining angle? One can make far more arguments against instant replay than for it. Given more time, I could add to my own thoughts.

Maybe each coach would be given the opportunity a call in the final minute? All they would have to do is throw a red towel on the floor (in homage to UNLV Coach Jerry "The Shark" Tarkanian). You get one challenge, so use it wisely.

But, in the most important of games (the state tournament) shouldn't everything be done to make sure the team who deserved to win the game, by virtue of their play on the court, wins the game?

To those who say rule changes aren't necessary? The Nebraska School Activities Association has added a shot clock for Class A, something I wouldn't be surprised to see a shot clock in all classes. So, a rule implemented to 'stop the flop' may some day come to pass

Still, at the end of the game, every time a referee's whistle blows, it's a subjective call. Fouls are called based on what they think they saw, not what Johnny or Julie Fan sees from the stands.

I don't know for certain where I stand on this issue. I do know when coaches don't acknowledge the obvious or profess ignorance by looking the other way, or when referees' whistles decide the game instead of the play on the court, it's bad for the players and the fans. Most importantly, it's bad for basketball. *****

The NSAA stated their intent to "nip in the bud" bad fan behavior by fans in the stands. It's a noble comment. But, it's not going to happen in March in Lincoln. If a sincere effort is to be made to curb bad behavior by fans (parents and students alike), it has to start at the local level. We've all sat around fans who, given the opportunity, we would like to put a sock in it. But, until the matter is addressed during the season, nothing will change in Lincoln.

planting alfalfa is just around the corner. Selecting the right seed is crucial, and two traits to consider are fall dormancy and winter survival. These traits are often treated the same, but are different. Let's take a closer look.

temperatures and

As temperatures drop and days shorten, alfalfa plants change their physiology to survive freezing Asst. Ext. Educator

Ben Beckman make it through winter. Winter survival or winter hardiness is the ability for an alfalfa plant to make it through winter without injury, once the plant goes dormant. Increased hardiness can lead to reduced yield potential, so we want to find a balance between a hardy stand and production potential. Winter survival is measured on a 1 to 6 scale with 1 being extremely hardy and 6 not hardy.

On the other hand, fall dormancy is a measure of an alfalfa plant's ability to regrow in the fall. Dormancy is scored on a scale ranging from 1 to 11 with 1 being most dormant and 11 the least. Higher dormancy means a harvested plant will focus its resources in the fall more on building reserves to survive the winter and less on new growth. There are free alfalfa ratings available online that may be helpful for comparing survival and dormancy between varieties.

This tendency toward slower regrowth manifests throughout the year, with less dormant varieties typically recovering faster in the spring and producing overall higher yields. Another role dormancy plays is keeping plants from starting growth during the random warm-ups we can have in the fall and winter months. Plants that break bud during these periods are subject to winterkill and will have to start growth from new buds later on.

STATEWIDE Call (402) 843-5500 to place your ad today!

Finally, fall dormancy can impact the harvest timetable. Again, lower dormancy ratings means a plant regrows slower. This translates into more time to remove ABOUT BEEF forage from the field before "windrow disease" and field traffic become a concern.

In the past, winter survival and fall dormancy traits were often linked. With new varieties, this isn't always the case, so each trait needs to be evaluated on its own.

We want to pick a winter survival ranking that will get us through winter without compromising yield. Where you are in the state plays a big role in what to pick, but in general, 3 is as low as we want to go to prevent a un-needed drop in yield. For fall dormancy, a rating of 5 or lower provides a good balance of yield and survival. Winter temperatures affect both survival and dormancy ratings, but maintained snow cover is also important. Snow can help insulate the ground, and parts of the state that regularly have open winters may need as high or higher survival rating than colder locations with winter-long snow cover. If you have regular issues with stand winterkill, you may consider going with a lower rated variety. Finally, don't forget that for dormancy ratings, spring recovery is important, but dormancy also impacts harvest schedule, yield potential, and prevents early bud break during winter warm snaps.

PAY TO THE Wolfpack Basketball $ 786.00 Seven Hundred Eighty Six _____ DOLLARS

Elgin Review Bank of Elgin

In a year which saw the Wolfpack boys and girls basketball team use the threepoint shot to their advantage, Thursday was the day to recognize their efforts.

Prior to the start of the season, the Elgin Review and the Bank of Elgin pledged to donate $3 for every threepointer made. On Thursday, the two local businesses made a donation of nearly $800 to the Wolfpack sports program. Shown holding the check are bank president Gary Arehart (l) and newspaper publisher Dennis Morgan (r).

The donations are just another example of how the two businesses, long-time fixtures in the community, continue to support our local schools.

Elgin Community Center Fundraiser Held

Thirteen tables were beautifully decorated for the public to enjoy on Sunday. The tea party, held as a fundraiser for interior upgrades at the Community Center, was a great success and delighted those in attendance. Look for a digital photo album to be uploaded on the Elgin Review's facebook page to view a number of photos from the event. You'll find a photo of LeeJean Koinzan's table on the front page and Lois Schrunk's table on page 2.

paperwork. With all his business and church commitments, Starman still finds time to be a self-proclaimed "voracious reader". Military history, especially WWII and U.S. Civil War; ancient history, and spiritual are his favorite topics.

Why Elgin? "The people – you can count on them to be there, to trust each other, and be supportive. If I'm fair with everyone else, fairness comes back to me," he said. Starman said he supports Elgin events and organizations often.

Keep planting seeds in the Elgin area as long as possible, John Starman. We all appreciate you.
