ECCC to host church, potluck on Saturday night

Worship service to begin at 5 p.m..

The Elgin Community Christian Church will be holding a special event later this month to welcome newcomers to our community.

The event will be held on Saturday, September 14. A "Church in the Park" worship service will be held at 5 p.m. Immediately afterwards, a potluck supper will be held in the park. Newcomers as well as the community are invited to attend.

City, EPS to be part of joint hearing next week

On property tax requests,

A joint public hearing will be held next week on proposed property tax increases

Antelope County Clerk Lisa Payne indicated representatives from Elgin Public Schools and the City of Elgin will be present to receive public input regarding property tax increases for the 2024/2025 fiscal year.

The meeting, open to the public, will be held Wednesday, Sept. 18, at 6 p.m. in the commissioners' meeting room at the Antelope County Courthouse in Neligh

The City of Elgin, following a public hearing last week, approved a property tax request of $217,655.

Elgin Public School has yet to approve their property tax asking of $3,636,363.

For more information, see the public notice on Page 8 of this newspaper OR contact Mrs. Payne at the courthouse during regular business hours.

Public Notices

Public notices in this week's newspaper include:

Notice of Hearing — Antelope County

City to work on map for 'essential' sidewalks

ELGIN — Children and their parents shouldn't have to fear walking to school in our community. That what sidewalks are for.

The

At last week's Elgin City Council meeting, discussion centered on how to address the issue since some properties have sidewalks in front of them and others don't.

The issue came to light as part of a request from William Heelan to remove the sidewalk at 403 S. Third Street. In a civil discussion of the issue, council members continued to review the matter, case by case, then approved Heelan's request. However, he said he won't act on the matter immediately, preferring to see which direction City Hall intends to go on the matter.

Mayor Mike Schmitt said the issue of sidewalks is growing. Some residents want to remove them because the sidewalks on their property are broken up, or the cost of concrete is too high. But, in many cases, people just don't use them any more preferring to walk in the street. In some cases, the existing sidewalks are dangerous to walk on due to their condition.

There seems to be a general consensus for making sure there are sidewalks that one can walk from the park to the schools which people can easily have access to. In the coming weeks/months, City Hall will be working towards creating a map designating essential sidewalks.

Later, following the conclusion of a public hearing, the council adopted the 2024/2025 fiscal year budget as proposed, then approved setting the property tax asking of $217,665.

On another matter involving properties, City Clerk Kristin Childers said over 30 letters have been sent out to property owners asking them to trim back trees with limbs hanging too low to sidewalks (eight foot) and streets (14 feet). She said the phone at City Hall has been busy since the letters went out, residents wanting to know which trees on their property needed to be trimmed.

She said, and the council agreed, if for some reason the property owner is unable to trim their trees, City Hall would make arrangements to have the work done and then bill the property owners.

In other action:

Street plan — City Engineer John Zwingman was present for the annual public hearing on the City's One & Six-Year Street Plan. Like last year, he said the plan includes no new projects, instead focusing on maintenance. The plan was adopted on a unanimous vote following a 10-minute hearing.

Building permits — The council approved building permits submitted by Central Valley Ag and Paul Pelster.

Tabled — No action was taken on the Homestead Subdivision discussed at the August meeting. Transfers — Two transfers from the sales tax fund were approved. One was for just under $32,000 to be transferred to the water fund for the water meter replacement project completed earlier this year. The second was for $5,000 to the pool fund for the pool painting project completed prior to the start of the pool season.

Resolutions — The council passed three additional resolutions. They were: • Resolution 2024-5 - To sign the municipal annual certification of program compliance.

• Resolution 2024-6 - Acknowledging the Nebraska Department of Transportation requirements for the temporary use of state highways for special events.

• Resolution 2024-7 - To set the final tax request for 2024/2025 at $217,665. The tax request was approved following a public hearing prior to the start of the regular meeting.

• Resolution 2024-8 - Establishing permit, license, rental, usage and related fees with requested changes.

to act on retirement resignation

Approval of a resignation is on the agenda for the September 11 (tonight) meeting of the District #18 Board of Education.

The first 'action' item on the agenda will be approval of a retirement resignation of math teacher Dorothy Heithoff. If approved, the resignation will take place at the end of the 2024/2025 school year, according to Superintendent Mike Brockhaus.

Other action items on the agenda are:

• Approve transferring Building Funds to the Building Fund CD

• Approve a new phone system • Approve transferring $500 to the Elgin Teammate Pinnacle Bank account for background checks of mentors

• Approve updated Policy 504.24 Title IX clerical mistakes

• Approve the Elgin Education Association as the bargaining unit for the 2026-2027 and 2027-2028 negotiations.

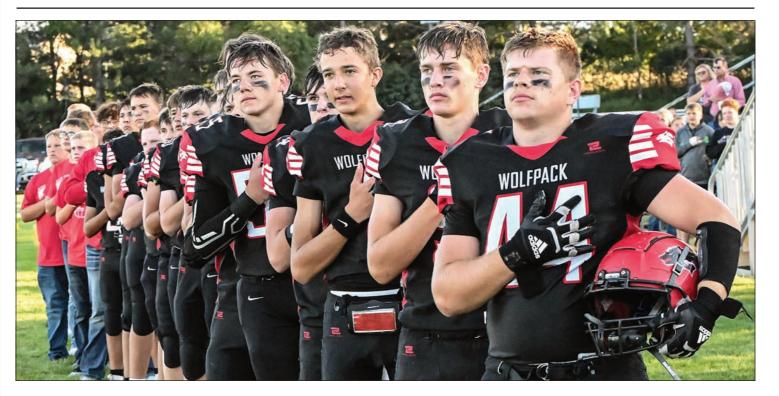

Later in the meeting, the board will set the date and time for the 2024/2025 Budget and Tax Request Hearings and Adoption. The hearings must be held no later than the end of the month.

The meeting, scheduled to begin at 6 p.m. in the board meeting room at the high school, is open to the public.

reaching into a cupboard, or lifting small children and grandchildren. While we can address shoulder dysfunction surgically when needed, this requires a significant time commitment that is difficult to fit into our busy lives. So, what can we do to prevent this? A large number of injuries are related to falls, especially when trying to break a fall with an outstretched arm. Seemingly innocent tripping hazards in the home, uneven ground in the field and pasture, and the slippery conditions of winter weather are some of the ities such as putting on a coat, most common culprits I see. Don't underestimate how quickly these aspects of daily life can turn the tables on vou.

Safe lifting is also important. Reaching out with your arm fully extended and lifting any significant weight puts a lot of strain on your rotator cuff. Try to lift heavier items closer to your body with your arms more at your side if possible.

Lastly, when doing shoulder exercises and strength training, I recommend using lower weights and higher repetitions. This will build stamina and tone muscle while minimizing the risk of injury.

Additionally, utilizing a strength training machine for movements such as shoulder or chest presses provides a more controlled movement, which I recommend over free weights.

If you're experiencing shoulder problems, feel free to call my office at 402-395-3180. I see patients at BCHC every Tuesday and Wednesday.

Demonstrating a healthy lifestyle to our kids

I think we've all heard the saying, "Do as I say, not as I do." It's a parenting trap we all fall into, but when it comes to our kids' health, it's a dangerous game. I'm ready to change the narrative, not just for my children, but for myself.

I'm fairly consistent when it comes to working out. There are weeks when I'm better than others, but in the past year and a half I have really made that a priority. The hard part about demonstrating this to the kids is if I work out while they're at school; they're not actually seeing me go to the gym. They might see me in workout clothes...but then again, I wear those every day whether I work out or not.

I've started getting up earlier and making that a part of my morning routine. It's hard because I am NOT a morning person. But they see me work out and it really does help me to start the morning on a good note. As much as I love to sleep in, I always hate it when I start the day late and feel as though I didn't have enough time to get everything completed.

Then there's the eating. We also must demonstrate making good choices. If left to his own devices, my fourteen-year-old would only eat carbs and would never eat another fruit or vegetable again. He would live off bread and pasta, maybe the occasional egg. Sometimes we get lazy, but most of the time we include at least one vegetable with dinner every night. They have to eat it. They can drown it in ketchup or pinch their nose, but it's happening.

I love fruits and vegetables so it's easy to model. Unfortunately, I also love sweets. I try to be mindful about eating junk in front of them and save it for when they aren't around. (Not advocating for hiding things but sometimes mommy needs ice cream after the kids go to bed.)

There's also drinking enough water and getting enough sleep. I struggle with both. Water is so boring, so I've had to find ways to stay hydrated. I've really become a fan of fizzy water lately just to change it up. And with sleep, it's just hard for me to fall asleep at night, hence why I like to sleep in.

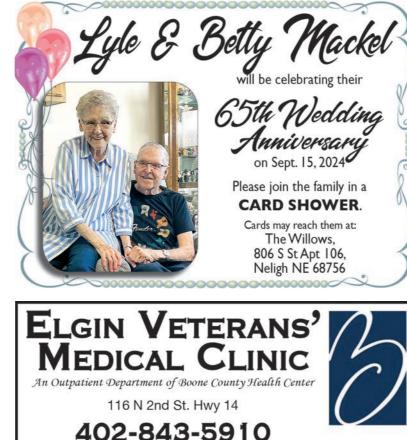

I'm very diligent about ensuring my kiddos go to bed at a good time, but I'm not as strict about it myself.

I also believe that a healthy lifestyle includes spiritual health. I want my children to see me reading God's word, going to church, and praying. We go to church every Sunday as a family. However, I'm not as consistent about reading my Bible and when I do, they often aren't home. I need to be intentional about doing my Bible study when they are there.

I need to model the behavior I want them to mimic. I still remember my mom reading her Bible and devotionals every morning while eating breakfast and it was very impactful. As parents, we won't be perfect. But it's important that we show them what healthy looks like. Physical, emotional, mental and spiritual health are all important and kids often learn by seeing and

Pillen names advocate for banning books to State Library Board

The State of Nebraska has more than 200 boards and commissions staffed by professionals and regular citizens.

They deal with a broad range of subjects, from the recently created Alzheimer's Disease and Other Dementia Advisory Council and State Child Death Review Team, to more recognizable boards, such as the Board of Parole and Board of Trustees for State Colleges. The governor gets to appoint members to many of ALL THINGS these boards, and NEBRASKA the appointments often go to supporters of the governor and people he knows.

Gov. Jim Pillen has already earned a reputation for picking folks he knows from growing up in Columbus.

His Lieutenant Governor, Joe Kelly, is a Columbus guy, and, among others, he tabbed folks who were from the Platte River town as his chief of economic development (K.C. Belitz) and to fill a vacancy at the State Legislature (Carolyn Bosn).

State Correspondent

Paul Hammel

I'd compare it to naming an anti-hunting advocate to the Nebraska Game and Parks Commission.

Last month, Pillen tabbed Terri Cunningham-Swanson of Plattsmouth to serve a six-year term on the State Library Board.

That five-member board's purpose is to promote, develop and coordinate library services across the state. It is also to be "an advocate for the library and information service needs of all Nebraskans," according to its website.

So the head-scratching commenced after the appointment of Cunningham-Swanson, who called for banning more than 50 books at her local middle school and high school libraries in Plattsmouth, according to reporting by Chris Dunker in the Lincoln Journal-Star.

That advocacy earned her the dubious distinction of being recalled from her spot on the Plattsmouth School Board by 62% of local voters. The vote was supported by four of her colleagues on the school board, and the controversy brewed up prompted a student protest walk out and the resignation of the high school librarian.

The hub-bub resulted in the formation of a review committee that re-moved one book – "Triangles," by Ellen Hopkins – from the school libraries. It also led to the placement of some other books in a restricted section (a section I'm sure school kids have gravitated to, because it was "restricted").

Book banning, in the name of protecting kids, is on a roll nationally.

More than 2,500 books had been banned through the 2022-23 school year across 41 states and 247 public school districts, according to PEN America, a group that tracks and advocates against such bans. Some of the banned books might surprise you. George Orwell's 1984, Toni Morrison's The Bluest Eye, and Khaled Hosseini's The Kite Runner are among titles removed from the shelves.

Even Charlotte's Web, a beloved children's book about a friendship between a pig and a garden spider, was banned after a Kansas group objected. Two talking animals must be the work of the devil they reasoned, according to The Week magazine, and only humans, God's highest creation, should be depicted talking.

I've been out of school for quite a while, but I recall respecting the judgment of my teacher, my principal and my local librarian – people specially trained to deal with kids - to use common sense on what I should be reading.

Cunningham-Swanson told the

"extremism" by a wide margin.

"Book bans have no place in Nebraska. We will continue the fight to keep it that way," Jayden Speed told the newspaper.

If the governor's goal was to stir things up on the low-profit Library Commission, the appointment of a bookban advocate to it will surely do that.

But naming someone that a local community has already deemed unfit to serve over libraries in their town seems like an unusual way to do that.**

Paul Hammel has covered the Nebraska state government and the state for decades He retired in April as senior contributor with the Nebraska Examiner. He was previously with the Omaha World-Herald, Lincoln Journal Star and Omaha Sun. A native of Ralston, Nebraska, he loves traveling and writing about the state.

Grit and commitment

To serve is an honor. That is especially true in serving one's country. Today in America, the honor to serve our nation is only granted to those who step up to the plate.

Military service is an honor, but it takes strong character. It takes grit and commitment. It takes someone who does not give up in the face of trials, someone determined to do the job and do it well.

Over the years, thousands of Nebraskans have stepped up to serve. They've demonstrated the character traits that prepare one to serve well. Those Nebraskans have gone on to defend our nation, to play a pivotal role in this country's history.

One path many of these Nebraskans have taken into military service is one of our country's five service academies: the U.S. Military Academy (West Point, New York), Naval Academy (Annapolis, Maryland), Air Force Academy (Colorado Springs, Colorado), Coast Guard Academy (New London, Connecticut), and Merchant Marine Academy (Kings Point, New York). Young people pursuing a commission may apply to one or more of these academies, where the education and training is simply unparalleled. The mission of all five service academies is to develop, educate, train, and inspire young people to become officers of character—officers who demonstrate grit and commitment.

These officers go on to lead in service to our nation and assume the responsibilities of command. Many become community leaders in schools, public office, and business.

The academies consider what's called the "whole person concept" when selecting students.

Young men and women who receive appointments to one of the academies must have high standards of character, leadership potential, honor, academic performance, and physical fitness, and they must meet strict medical qualifi-

Those who earn an appointment enjoy a world-class education, challenging athletic opportunities, and diverse military experiences.

Cadets and midshipmen graduate without debt and receive a monthly stipend while attending a service academy.

Upon graduation, they will earn a Bachelor of Science degree and be commissioned as an officer, serving for at least five years in our nation's Air Force, Army, Coast Guard, Navy, Marines, Merchant Marines, or Space Force Applicants to the academies, excluding the Coast Guard Academy, must be nominated by a member of Congress. Every fall, following a rigorous evaluation process, I have the privilege of nominating candidates that I believe would be excellent military officers. Each year, my staff hosts Academy Days, where we give interested Nebraskans more information about the academy nomination and application processes.

Our next Academy Day will be held on September 15 from 1:00pm – 3:00pm at Lincoln Northwest High School (4901 W Holdrege St, Lincoln). This is the perfect opportunity for high school students, especially juniors and seniors considering the application process, and their parents to learn more about how to apply for nominations.

If you feel you have the grit, commitment, and desire to serve our nation as a commissioned officer, I hope to hear from you during the nomination process this year.

In her mid-year report to Congress, the head of IRS' internal Taxpayer Advocate Service Erin Collins indicated less than one-fifth of the 2.1 million people who called the IRS collections phone line reached a representative. Many hung up in frustration over long wait times or got directed to recorded messages. As of April of this year, identity-theft cases were going unresolved for as much as 22 months at the IRS. At the time, the agency had approximately 500,000 unresolved cases in its inventory. Speaking to the need to make effective changes, Collins said, "Let's not throw bodies at the problem. Let's think differently." I appreciate this commonsense reasoning, as throwing bodies at the problem amounts to throwing taxpayer dollars at the problem.

During the month of August 2024, reports from the U.S. Treasury Inspector General for Tax Administration (TIG-TA) revealed the IRS is failing to update the agency's outdated information systems and has failed to implement protections for law-abiding American families and small businesses from unnecessary audits.

It is no secret how outdated technology infrastructure used by many major federal agencies continues to harm everyday Americans. Modernization of antiquated IRS systems is badly needed to improve taxpayer service and better

Letters Writer says it won't be good if medical marijuana is passed

Dear Editor,

Nebraska will be going from the frying pan into the fire if legal medical marijuana is passed into law. In my state of Colorado, which passed "medical" marijuana in 2000, the scant income from the sale of cannabis is dwarfed by the increased costs of automobile accidents, driving under the influence, addiction treatment, educational problems, increased domestic and street violence, as well as a lowered perception of harm by teens. If legalized, weed will immediately become more accessible to teens.

Suicide is now the #1 cause of death in our youth ages 15-18 in Colorado. The #1 substance in their toxicology reports is THC, not alcohol or any other illicit substance. I formed a nonprofit, Johnny's Ambassadors Youth THC Prevention, after our 19-year-old son, Johnny, died by suicide in 2019 after becoming psychotic from using THC concentrates here in Colorado. He got a "medical" card at 18 and started thinking the mob was after him. We now educate parents, teens, and communities about the possible harms of youth THC use, mostly through school assemblies. See https://JohnnysAmbassadors.org/research for the facts.

Johnny's Ambassadors currently has 1,632 Parents of Children with Cannabis-Induced Psychosis (POCCIP) in our support group. We sadly welcome 10-20 new members each week. Teen marijuana psychosis is a silent epidemic no one is talking about. Many Nebraska parents would join this club no one wants to belong to if marijuana is legalized.

Our Scientific Advisory Board member, Dr. Karen Randall, an Emergency Department physician in Pueblo, CO, says she treats teens in the ED every day with episodes of acute psychosis, cyclical vomiting, and poisoning. If marijuana passes, you'll suddenly see much of the same. Save your youth and SAY NO to legalization this fall!

60-year class reunion held at Petersburg

Fifteen of the 24 members of the Petersburg St. John the Baptist Alumni Class of 1964 gathered Saturday, August 31, 2024 at the Petersburg American Legion Club to socialize and get reacquainted after 60 years. The class enjoyed reminiscing and viewing photos. Some members coming from as far as Colorado and Scottsbluff, NE. Tom Arends, Joyce Arends and Mona Thieman joined to contact classmates and make preparations for the enjoyable evening. Pictured in the front row (I-r) are Mona (Daniels) Thieman, Lucy (Thiem) Morgan, Marilyn (Camp) McCunne, Claudelle "Tooke" (Wildes) Thieman, Joyce (Arends) Bottorf, Sharon (Reed) Svoboda, Rose (Lordemann) Wiehn and Meg (Camp) Krause. Back row: Jim Ketteler, Ray Thieman, Marvin Wies, Tom Arends, Larry Petsche and Lenny Schrad.

protect Americans' personal data. Yet one TIGTA report found, and the IRS subsequently confirmed, it has no plans to decommission and replace the vast majority of its outdated technology systems. Another TIGTA report showed the IRS has not yet finalized any methodology for calculating audit coverage in 2018, the historical year against which it is basing compliance with a 2022 directive from Treasury Secretary Janet Yellen not to increase IRS audits of taxpayers earning less than $400,000.

This validates what has been clear all along. Secretary Yellen's instruction was not a serious policy directive. Instead, it was hollow political messaging. Not only has the IRS made little demonstrable progress on this directive, it is clear the IRS will need to shift resources away from audits focused on instances of more consequential fraud and improper payment rates to instead target law-abiding small business owners and middle-class families in order to meet its own internal targets.

To address inefficiencies and hold the IRS accountable, the best course of action is to enact my bill—the first bill passed by House Republicans in January 2023—to repeal the remainder of IRS's $80 billion in mandatory funding. This bill would also preserve funding for customer service and IT modernization at the IRS. Rather than dumping billions into a failing IRS, Congress should instead be working through the regular appropriations process to ensure the IRS is appropriately funded and is prioritizing cases with the highest likelihood of fraud or error for audit. This is the correct way to provide funding for federal agencies. One of the primary reasons we fund federal agencies on an annual basis is to ensure appropriate oversight of the executive branch, and it is clear this $80 billion infusion is a barrier to proper oversight.

Biden-Harris policies of harmful new taxes and wasteful spending, including a bloated IRS, Babysitter Tax schemes to monitor small, everyday digital transactions, and new ways to crackdown on tips received by service workers, do not empower American families and small businesses. Instead of focusing on improvements to basic needs like IT and customer service, they empower the IRS to conduct costly audits on law-abiding Americans. We can do much better.

The IRS can and should work better for American taxpayers.

To have faith is to be sure of the things we hope for, to be certain of the things we cannot see.

In a world that doesn't always make sense, find answers in faith!

Attending church on a regular basis is an integral part of faith communities and adds to an individual's sense of a faith family. If it's been a while since you've attended a service/Mass, come back. You are always welcome.

f our world followed God's instructions, our self-inflicted sufferings would not exist.

God's plan is perfect.

God laid it all out there for us to follow.

Can we try to improve?

Members of the Homecoming Court at Pope John this year were (I-r): Juliana McNally, Darby Carstens, Queen Kaitey Schumacher, Natalie Burenheide and Olivia Klein.

Schumacher crowned PJCC Homecoming Queen

The 2024 Pope John Homecoming Coronation ceremonies were held Sunday, Sept. 8 at 7 p.m

Kaitey Schumacher was honored as the new queen. She is the daughter of Kevin and Lisa Schumacher. She is a member of the National Honor Society, Co-President of Student Council, Junior Right to Life, volleyball, dance team captain, one act, speech, quiz bowl, band, musical, and she serves as an EMHC

Members of the Royal Court were Natalie Burenheide, Darby Carstens, Olivia Klein, and Juliana McNally. Chosen by the seniors to crown the Queen was junior Camry Kittelson, daughter of Ryan and Casee Kittelson. Crown bearer was second grader, Adalyn Veik, daughter of Adam and Heather Veik.

Decorations were provided by the sophomore class with the help of Chris Grundmayer. Aiden Klein served as MC for the ceremony.

Following coronation, there was a scavenger hunt.

Berger Joins BCHC Foundation Board

Boone County Health Center (BCHC) announce last week the addition of Shirley Berger to its Foundation Board. Shirley, a farmer/rancher wife and bookkeeper, brings financial knowledge and dedication to her new role, rooted in a deep commitment to the community and BCHC's mission. Shirley is married to Bill Berger, and together they have four children, a son-in-law, a daughter-in-law, and a grandson

Shirley's connection to BCHC runs deep, as her daughter,

Melissa, previously worked at BCHC as an Exercise Specialist in Cardiac Rehab for eight years. She decided to join the BCHC Foundation Board because of her family's positive experiences with the center's services.

"My family has utilized the incredible and updated services BCHC has to offer," she said.

"I want to continue to encourage and promote the importance of updated modern equipment." She is particularly passionate about the convenience and efficiency of BCHC's services, which include preventative exams, surgical procedures, therapy services, and specialty clinics. Living in a rural area, Shirley understands the importance of having high-quality healthcare close to home. "We are so fortunate and blessed to have the services BCHC offers so close to our homes," she remarked. "For my family and me, it's convenient to make that quick trip to get labs drawn, tests performed, attend therapy sessions, etc., without having to drive miles."

Shirley Berger is a welcome addition to the BCHC Foundation Board.

CWC Girls Volleyball competed in a triangular held in Chambers Thursday, Sept. 5.

Elgin Public-Pope John defeated CWC 25-17 and 25-9. In the final match, Stuart defeated CWC 25-16 and 25-14.

CWC's football team played against North Central on Friday night, Sept. 6 in Chambers, winning with a score of 56-48.

I met with my son Andy and his family in Grand Island to celebrate my birthday on Saturday. We ate lunch at 'Pepper Jax,' then spent the rest of the afternoon at Stuhr Museum.

I was very impressed with all the exhibits and people working there. My grandkids from Lincoln enjoyed the freedom of the wide open spaces and simple pleasures like the swings by the country school house.

The culmination of a great day was eating ice cream from one of the shops at Stuhr, along with small individual bundt cakes purchased in Lincoln by Andy. My choice of ice cream was peaches and cream complimenting a pumpkin bundt cake.

I have special memories of this birthday. It makes getting older seem a little less painful.

Joan Marie Schindler, daughter of John Jacob and Florence Edith (Rumery) Stoltz, was born March 13, 1940 on the family farm southwest of Elgin, NE. She was baptized and confirmed at St. Boniface Catholic Church in Elgin, attended Park Center country school in her early primary school years before attending St. Boniface Catholic School. She boarded with the nuns in the winter months until her father fell ill with cancer and the family moved to town. She graduated from St. Boniface High School in 1958 and continued her education at St. Joseph's in Omaha, where she earned her degree as a Licensed Practical Nurse. She worked as a nurse for Dr's Ewing and Ewing in Omaha for a couple of months before meeting the love of her life.

On June 18, 1960, Joan married John Harold Schindler at St. Boniface Church in Elgin, NE They lived and farmed west of Elgin where they were blessed with seven children: Gwen, Bev, Marla, Mark, Paul, Greg and Jeff. Joan was a devoted farm wife, mother, grandmother and greatgrand-mother. She was a woman of hospitality and servitude, making everyone feel welcome at her table. She coined the phrase, "The first 100 years are always the hardest" to many as her sage advice for any situation they may be going through. She enjoyed

Late summer always seems like a time when weeds can become quite noticeable in pastures. While they may be an eye sore, control methods now are limited. Proper ing the right management call. Annual weeds like horseweed, sunflowers, snow-on-themountain, and buffalo bur can be plentiful, often showing up in areas of pastures that have relatively thin grass stands, in areas where ani-

if some overgrazing has occurred. These weeds are taking advantage of an open space, providing the sunlight, nutrients, and water to grow. Besides being too large to kill at this point, most annuals have already set seed. Spraying at this point will do nothing to prevent that seed from maturing and starting a new plant next year.

To control the population of annual weeds next year, preventing seed spread is key. At this point the only sure fire tool available is to collect it by hand, a very labor intensive option. Plants that have yet to set seed may be mowed off to improve appearance and stop some seed production. We can also mark the spot as an area to keep an eye on next year. A spring herbicide application when plants are smaller is better for summer annual control and killing

Perennial weeds like western ragweed, ironweed, and again, spraying weeds now production. Just like annuals, spring herbicide applications are best when plants are small and young tissues more easily if additional control is needed, waiting closer to a killing double whammy of stressing the plant heading into winter and allows more product to be translocated down to the shoots and roots as nutrients are pulled down for winter storage.

For all weeds, dry conditions can throw a wrench in our plans as well. Plants that have gone dormant due to drought are not absorbing and translocating herbicide like normal, so little control will come from an application. It's better to hold off until moisture renews growth either this fall or next spring.

When it comes to herbicides, getting a proper ID is critical for making the correct management decision. If you need a hand, UNL produces two handy plant ID books available in pdf form free online; "Common Grasses of Nebraska" and 'Common Forbs and Shrubs of Nebraska". As always, your local extension office is also willing to lend a hand.

The last point to consider for pasture weeds, but arguably most important, is focusing on the grazing management for long-term weed control. This includes using the proper stocking rate and developing a good rotational grazing plan. While this doesn't work for all weeds, especially some of our more nasty perennial species like leafy spurge and Canada thistle, most reoccurring pasture weeds are a symptom of poor grazing management. These plants are opportunistic invaders, taking advantage of an open piece of ground and weakened competition from their neighbors. As such, an important objective is to increase the health, vigor, and density of your grass. Healthy, competitive grass stands are essential to reduce weed populations economically over time.

Pasture weeds may look unsightly now, but hold off on spraying. Improve grazing management and time herbicides for the best window of control so herbicides won't be needed as often in the future.

Golf carts are an asset to many people, particularly those residing in gated enclaves, retirement villages or specialized housing subdivisions that are part of master planned communities. Golf carts are more affordable than cars or trucks.

ranging between $12,000 to $14,000 for new electric carts, indicates Kandi America. Those looking for a used cart might be able to snag a deal between $4,000 and $8,000.

As the use of golf carts away from the golf course increases, those new to these vehicles can familiarize themselves with some golf cart facts.

1. Golf carts primarily come as electric- or gas-powered models. Each variety has its shares of pros and cons, so it's best for drivers to do some research regarding which type will be best for their individual needs.

2. These days many people use golf carts while traversing the course, even when not performing in a tournament. However, Total Golf Cart says golf carts were once used primarily by senior citizens or people with mobility issues.

3. Those using golf carts outside the grounds of a golf course should learn local laws regarding driving these carts on public roads before investing. All areas are different. For example, in Florida, drivers may operate golf carts on residential streets, but it is only legal to drive them on a public road in specific circumstances.

4. Various regulations govern the wearing of seat belts in golf carts. Additional rules may mandate that carts should have efficient brakes, reliable steering, safe tires, a rearview mirror, and red reflectorized warning devices in both the front and rear.

5. J's Golf Carts says that if a is unsure about whether best to buy a street legal cart to keep oneself and passengers protected.

6. Golf carts do not move very quickly. Most average top speeds between 20 and 25 miles per hour, indicates WilDar Golf Carts and Trailers.

7. Golf carts may not be covered by standard homeowners' insurance policies. A separate policy is a smart investment, particularly for those taking golf carts on roads. Furthermore, check to see if a golf cart, which may be considered a low speed vehicle, must be titled and registered.

Prospective buyers should do some research before investing in such vehicles.

EPPJ posts shutout win over Walthill Friday night

ELGIN — Walthill's 'great eight' fought hard but the Wolfpack's burst of points in the first half proved too much to overcome Friday night. EPPJ scored 32 points in the first quarter and rolled to a 54 to 0 victory. The Wolfpack got on the scoreboard less than a minute into the game and rolled to their first victory of the season, thanks in large part to a challenge to the offensive line made earlier in the week.

Co-Head Coach Nick Heithoff said he challenged the offensive line to be more physical than they were in a loss to Burwell one week earlier. "I really challenged our group to take control early," he said. "And they did from the start ... never let up.'

Senior Dylan Kolm got the Wolfpack's first touchdown on a run down the far sideline, then added the two-point conversion.

Tailback Grady Drueke took his turn with a long run to the goalline. Drueke went 23 yards to score the first of his three touchdowns.

Taylor Beckman added one touchdown and Kolm scored his second TD before the end of the first quarter to give the Wolfpack a 32 to 0 lead.

EPPJ tallied one touchdown in the second quarter, a four-yard run by Drueke to make the score 48 to 0 and ensure the clock would run in the second half.

Two touchdowns, one by Drueke and another by backup tailback Gavin Kallhoff wrapped up scoring.

For many, the highlight of the game came in the final moments of the fourth quarter. With Coach Euse substituting freely for most of the game, reserves were playing defense as Walthill went down the field.

The Bluejays final drive got them to the Wolfpack's two-yard line with under a minute left in the game

Kaeden Schwarting (7) takes down this Walthill runner just short of the goalline to preserve the Wolfpack's 54 to 0 shutout victory.

Both coaches said the team wanted a shutout. To that end, the game came down to a fourth down play. Walthill chose to run Sage Grant wide on fourth down. Kallhoff and Kaeden Schwarting were waiting for him and took the Bluejay runner down just short of the goalline as Wolfpack fans roared their approval.

That's where the game ended. "Our defense never let up," Co-Coach Matt Euse said. "Both the first and second string. The goal line stand at the end of the game, they made some plays.³ Drueke led Wolfpack ball carriers with 97 yards on 10

Wolfpack stay unbeaten, sweeping CWC, Stuart

CHAMBERS — Playing their first triangular of the season, Elgin Public-Pope John made it look easy with one-sided victories over Chambers/ Wheeler Central and Stuart.

The Wolfpack defeated Stuart 25-17 and 25-14. Earlier in the evening they bested CWC 25-17 and 25-9.

Wolfpack Coach Jordynn Luettel said what she liked most about the night was the balanced play as both the front and back row play made her proud.

At one point in the first set against CWC, EPPJ recorded four kills in a six-point stretch as Braelyn Martinsen had two as did Chloe Henn. The team had 23 kills in 50 swings with just seven errors. Henn led hitters with 12 kills.

Camry Kittelson had a teamhigh 18 set assists and Elizabeth Moser, seeing her first action of the season, added two.

Against Stuart, EPPJ made sure the Lady Broncos never got into the match, winning 25-7 and 25-14. Senior libero Kate Furstenau achieved a career mark as she reached 1,000 digs.

"We wouldn't be where we are without Kate," Coach Luettel said, adding that with the Wolfpack sweeping many of their matches, it's difficult to reach that milestone. The Wolfpack had 29 kills in 52 swings, led by Henn with 10, Kittelson added seven.

Furstenau, Moser and Callie Heithoff tied for the team high in ace serves with two apiece. Furstenau had a team-high 12 digs in the match. She also led in serve receive with nine. Kittelson again led in set assists with 18.

Stuhr leads XC runners at Boone County Invite ALBION — Conditions were cool and damp Friday morning for the Wolfpack as they competed at the Boone Central Invite held at the Albion Country Club.

"I know it wasn't a medaling day but I was very happy with how they did because the times show good things!" EPPJ Coach Tiffany Moser said.

In the girls 5K run, Hastings Sophia Reynolds crossed the finish line first with a time of 19:30.90, second was Melissa Gomez-Vasquet, Columbus, at 20:22.70.

The Wolfpack were led by sophomore Samantha Stuhr with a time of 25:12.90 good enough to finish 47th out of 77 runners

Senior Emma Kinney finished the challenging course in a time of 31:53.00.

"Samantha was shooting to start around 26 minutes and she was well under that," Moser said. "Emma had a nice strong finish.

In the boys division, Austin Carrera, a senior from Hastings, won the race in a time of 15:53.50, more than 30 seconds ahead of runner-up Jacob Swanson of Nebraska Christian. The Wolfpack's two freshman runners showed well in their first competition. Evin Pelster clocked in at 20:26.40, teammate Matthew Kerkman finished with a time of 21:45.10.

"Evin didn't get the school record but it's a 20:12 (the record) and he did a 20:26," Moser said.

"The boys got to experience their first meet and did not disappoint. We were up against bigger schools than us and that gave us great competition.'

JUNIOR HIGH

space left I will print my observations of what is happening around us. So that brings us to here, there and everywhere.

This space is dedicated to a moment in time, Saturday night at Memorial Stadium.

Lynell and I took our seats in the South Stadium about 30 minutes before kickoff between the Huskers and the Buffaloes. There was a buzz going through the crowd about what was to soon take place on the field. It kinda felt like lambs (the Buffs) being led to a slaughter. There wasn't a doubt who was going to win this game, not in my row, not in my section, not in our stadium.

Walking to the stadium, under the Ninth Street overpass, the usually boisterous Buff fans were strangely quiet, like a convicted killer about to take his last breath before being executed.

They weren't scared, but they seemed to look like they were about to be ambushed.

And that's exactly what happened on the field. By now, most of you have seen the game or the post-game highlights of our 28 to 10 victory. The final score makes it appear like it was a competitive game (it was not). The score could have easily been 48 to 10 as, from early in the first quarter when Tommi Hill scored on a pick-six, the outcome of the game had already been decided. The game featured a team versus individual stars. Playing as one, 11 will always win over two or three.

In the stands as the game began, the roar of the crowd was deafening. More often than I care to admit, I couldn't understand what Lynell was trying to tell me while sitting next to me.

CU's players were being called all kinds of names, words you would never speak in front of your mother (at least not mine). Here we are more than 60 rows up from the field, and their alcohol-fueled tongues were ranting like CU could hear them as if they were just one row away.

Colorado, by far, has been the worst fan base NU has played against in my lifetime. They've always felt like they didn't get the respect they thought they deserved. In the Big Eight it was always Nebraska and Oklahoma at the top. Colorado was always trying to become elite, but rare were the times they were better than NU or OU. In the Big 12, it was NU and Texas at the top, then Oklahoma rejoined the ranks, Colorado was still on the outside. Finally, they decided to move to the PAC-12 at the same time as NU left for the Big 10.

We're still trying to make our mark in the Big 10, Colorado came back to the Big 12 this year and maybe they will become a top-tier team. Maybe ...

I've been to bigger games, but I can't really remember when because the Huskers seem to have been wandering in the desert for 20 years.

Saturday night's CU game, in my mind compares to the battle of 17-14 when Osborne and Nebraska finally broke through and beat Oklahoma. That was the game where John Rudd, on kickoff coverage, nearly killed an OU kick returner with a hit that has yet to be forgotten nearly 50 years later. The game wasn't won until Heisman Trophy winner Billy Sims fumbled two yards away from the go-ahead touchdown, the ball recovered by future Governor Jim Pillen.

The buzz in the stadium that day was on par with what went on Saturday night.

The OU victory began a run of unparalleled excellence for NU over the next 20 years.

We didn't win every game, but we were "in the arena" as Teddy Roosevelt said, always there
